THE ELECTION.

New-Orleans is even more actively in the whirlpool of politics than when I last wrote, each day which brings us nearer to the day of election—WASHINGTON'S birthday—making the race all the more exciting, as the contest narrows itself down to fewer but more prominent names. At present public attention seems to be centred most on what nomination the Free State body are going to make in convention for Governor. The most important names in that body seem at present to be Mr. District-Attorney WAPLES, Hon. T. J. DURANT—the leader of the Extremists—Judge HOWELL and MICHAEL HAHN, Judge WHITTAKER, the only other candidate of consequence, not being yet understood as intending to let his name go for nomination in the convention, his friends appearing to prefer holding him in reserve, to run him independently or not, as circumstances may justify, according to the choice that the convention may make.

As matters now stand, Mr. DURANT is reported to disclaim altogether any intention to allow his name to be put in nomination. This reserve is not understood, as it is generally supposed that if he did, his chances of being nominated would be excellent, and that if nominated he would be almost sure of being elected. In his absence, if Mr. WAPLES should be the nominee of the convention, current opinion is that his election would also be probable, although he would have a hard fight with MICHAEL HAHN, who, so report says, will run independently, as he did on a former occasion, with or without a convention. Should MICHAEL HAHN be nominated by the convention, then we shall have reason to expect a great fight, as that would invariably make a split in the convention itself—many of whom are diametrically opposed to HAHN'S election; Judge WHITTAKER would then be probably run as an independent candidate, and his great personal popularity, joined by the disaffected wing of the Free-State party against HAHN, would make a very hard and close struggle.

Up to the last day or two, the registration of voters, according to the new form of oath required by Gen. BANKS' last Proclamation, was going on so very slowly as to create a fear that the election would prove a failure, from the lack of the legal number required by the President's Proclamation. During the last 48 hours, however, things have begun to take a different turn, and the returns from the City Hall, yesterday, showed that up to that date, nearly 1750 had taken the Proclamation oath. The number of names entered under Gen. SHEPLEY'S order for the registration of voters, was, at the same time, about 4100; showing that, at the same ratio of increase, we may confidently hope to see the number of voters required by Gen. BANKS' order, long before the day fixed for the election.

I am sorry to say that evidences are already beginning to multiply of an organized attempt to convert the Free-State Convention—a body hitherto supposed to embrace all the concentrated loyalty of the State of Louisiana—into a packed organization for carrying out the objects of mere political gamblers. Many names of great prominence among that body are those of highly honorable men who would not, under any circumstances, bend themselves to the dirty work of party politics; but others again, loudest among the loudest in spread-eagle devotion to the Goddess of Liberty, are beginning to show a somewhat suspicious hankering after the loaves and fishes. We begin to hear sentiments uttered in that great sanctum-sanctorum of liberty—Lyceum Hall—that a very short time ago would have been denounced almost as treasonable to the cause of liberty and Union. Freemen are plumply told, for instance, that they must not examine too closely the horses that are to run the campaign; that, if they go splitting straws about the antecedents of any nominee the convention may bring forth, perhaps there cannot be found a man with hands clean enough to run for Governor; and we have seen the assertion boldly and publicly made from the rostrum that any man who does not vote for the nominee of the convention is a traitor. How far the good, loyal, Slavery-hating freemen of Louisiana are going to permit themselves to be lashed into the support of any man the convention may nominate—even if unsound on the "goose question"—remains yet to be seen.

GRAND DRESS PROMENADE CONCERT.

The greatest local event, since my last, was unquestionably the Promenade Concert which took place at the French Opera House on the evening of Tuesday, 26th, and which turned out one of the most brilliant reunions that have occurred in New-Orleans since the Federal occupation. Considered merely as a pleasurable social event, it would still be deserving of mention in my letter, but viewed in the light—as it certainly should be—of a vast step toward the drawing together and amalgamating the discordant elements of which society here has been hitherto composed, I look upon it as a movement of marked political importance.

Although the Commanding General and his lady lent it their countenance, this entertainment was not understood as emanating from anything like military authority. It was the spontaneous work of several of our leading officers and most influential citizens. Although many very delightful parties had been given by those high in station here, such reunions, occurring at private mansions, could only embrace a very limited number of that large body of respectable native citizens who would be gladly welcomed to northern hospitality. No other means seemed to present itself, for meeting those who would be willing to shake off their prejudices and mingle freely with the "Yankees," but something on a grand public scale like the present, and if such were the idea it succeeded admirably.

On entering the body of the magnificent Opera House—whose whole stage and parterre had been thrown into one immense carpeted space, with GILMORE'S splendid military band stationed in the centre—the coup d'œil was very grand and enlivening. The whole of the boxes and galleries were filled with gentlemen and well-dressed ladies—doubtless of all sorts of political creeds—while in the lower part of the building many of our most distinguished officers and citizens of well-known loyal sentiments, with their wives and daughters, were promenading to the fine music of GILMORE'S Band. There was evidently a little coldness and reserve at first, the fair occupiers of the boxes apparently looking down on the show as something in which they were not expected or did not wish to mingle. The lady of the Commanding-General had, however, set the good example of going down among the promenaders, and immediately produced the effect of an excellent decoy. First, one gentleman of rather strongly reputed "secesh" proclivities, was seen descending the carpeted stairs into the parterre, with a beautiful lady on each arm, then another couple or trio, and another, until people were at last pointed out to me mingling in the same joyous crowd with their Northern brothers and sisters, and who, but a very short time ago, probably imagined that they never could have so associated with hated "Yankees" and survived it.

The performances (which were all gratuitous, as well as the admission tickets from an appointed number of managers) were admirable in selection and execution. Among the performers were Signor OLIVIERA, the renowned violinist, Miss GEORGIANA LABORDE, a Southern beauty, as charming in person as in voice and musical execution, and little CLARA FISHER, a native child of only eleven years of age, and exhibiting wonderfully premature powers. It is, I believe, the intention of her parents to go immediately North, for her education; and if her young voice is not hurt by too early exertion, we shall certainly hear of her making her mark in the musical world before long.

The talisman having been found for mutually warding off all evil from Northerners and Southerners who choose to associate, and the keen edge of the wedge having been inserted for the overthrow of the huge barrier of prejudice hitherto dividing them, it is both hoped and expected that it will now be driven home in earnest. We already hear of the intention of renewing such an entertainment on even a grander scale, and it is even hinted that we are to have a masquerade ball on a large and magnificent scale. There is great policy in this adaptation of the new-comers to the tastes and habits of the old inhabitants. The people of Louisiana are naturally gay, and lovers of music and the drama. The opera was supported here always, upon a scale equal to any thing in Europe, when New-York even was incapable of maintaining it; and it is believed that the reopening of the opera—which is being seriously discussed—will do more toward commingling and fraternizing the people than any other institution that could be devised.

EFFECT OF THE FROST.

From many quarters I hear that the late extraordinary weather has had the most disastrous effect upon the sugar crops; indeed, that on many plantations there will be none at all for next season. On asking one planter, he told me that it was universally reported so, but that he really did not know of any one who had taken the trouble to put a spade into the ground to satisfy himself of the fact. Some idea of the intensity of the cold weather we have had can be gleaned from the fact that, on calling upon a friend, a day or two ago—an old resident physician here—I found him limping about his studio, with his feet very much swollen, and the whole upper leather of his shoes cut away. On ascertaining the cause, imagine my surprise at hearing that he was frost-bitten while going about in the city among his patients. This unearthly weather has, however, quite left us, and we are again basking in that delicious sunny air that can only be felt in such a climate as this. It is even more delightful than the Indian Summer of the North.

THE LEVEES

Have been causing us much apprehension of late, several large fissures and crab-holes having made their appearance at various dangerous places up the river, which, in case of any crevasse, would flood the country for miles around. Gen. BANKS, hearing of this, issued a timely order empowering the Provost-Marshal-General to cause an immediate survey of the levees to be made, and such labors undertaken as would place them beyond the possibility of rupture. I presume the order has been effectually carried out, as we hear no more reports of the threatening condition of our banks along the river.

NAVAL AND MILITARY MOVEMENTS.

We are still in perfect ignorance respecting these, except that everybody seems to distinctly understand that "something is up." Movements of troops continually go on at intervals, but so noiselessly that none but the inquisitive appear to notice them at all. Where they are going, and what to do, you will doubtless hear in good time.

One sure sign of our not going to be lazy down here is that we have the sea-lion FARRAGUT among us once more. The gallant tar was received here with high honors, and as soon as he arrived the Commanding-General opened his mansion for a grand reception; to which everybody and his wife flocked to grasp the hand of the old hero. Rear-Admiral FARRAGUT is beloved and respected everywhere; but somehow Louisiana—the scene of his greatest exploits—seems determined to have him all to herself. He looks in admirable health and spirits, and ready, as usual, to go at anything.

Political Matters—Re-enlisting Regiments—Miscellaneous.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

NEW-ORLEANS, Wednesday, Jan. 20, 1864.

To a close observer, and one who possesses any facilities for watching the channels and directions of public opinion in this city, nothing is more interesting than to note the gradual change which is taking place in the feelings and political views of a great part of its resident population. This is every day becoming more apparent. Active, demonstrative hatred, has in many instances given way, if not to an entirely opposite feeling, at least to a passiveness which promises better things, and bespeaks an openness to conviction and discussion. Many accommodate themselves to the new order of affairs, as the prospects of the Confederacy grow daily darker, and range themselves on the winning side. But, whatever be the motive, certain it is that a regeneration is now going on in this and the surrounding parishes, which ere many years will elevate Louisiana to the sphere for which she is by nature so richly endowed.

Who shall be the nominee for the office of Governor in the ensuing election] is now the question which agitates the public mind, and numerous candidates have already been put up for nomination, probably as feelers of the public pulse. The name of Thos. J. DURANT, a staunch Unionist and unconditional war man, is generally well received, and it is probable that he will be tendered the nomination. The registry of voters meanwhile is going on, and I venture to predict that the number of votes polled will surprise Northern Copperheads, who are continually assuring us of the hostility of the people of redeemed cities such as this.

The gossip in military circles of late has been concerning an apparently distinguished individual styling himself Maj. W——. The Major arrived in this city some little time since, no one knew whence, put up at the St. Charles, attired himself in gorgeous apparel, (military, of course,) drove stylish horses, which, by the way, he subsisted at Government expense, gave dinners, and, in short, dazzled many by his imperious dignity and splendor. But somebody seems to have suspected his genuineness, and the Major was requested to show his documents, which he failed to do, and he consequently was arrested and brought before a Court of Inquiry, who discovered some facts very ruinous to the Major's reputation as an officer—in fact that he was no officer at all—but an arrant impostor. Whereupon the court sentenced him, the said W——, to either twenty-five years in the Penitentiary or the alternative of leaving the country. He has very wisely chosen the latter, and plain Mr. W—— will leave on a trip to Europe by the next steamer via New-York.

The Seventy-fifth New-York Volunteers, the only veteran New-York regiment in this department, is now in this city awaiting its departure for Auburn, N. Y., the city in which it was organized. The men have, with scarce a dozen exceptions, reënlisted, and expect to return hither in the Spring with filled ranks. The regiment has done some heavy fighting, and merits a triumphal reception at home. Several other regiments from Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois and Connnecticut, are also on the move—while to supply their places large numbers of negroes are joining the Corps de Afrique, which is beginning to assume mammoth proportions.

Refugees come in from Mobile and the country around it now at an average rate of fifty per week. They all tell the same story of high prices and scarcity of provisions. Under these circumstances very few persons here are desirous of crossing the line into rebeldom. A flag-of-truce schooner, the Alice McGuigan, will leave here in a few days for Pascagoula for the purpose of conveying hither a number of persons from within the Confederate lines. Many, doubtless, will be the attempts at smuggling and fraud—but Gen. BOWEN will put the proper men on the lookout for anything of the kind.

The social world has of late been flying about in a whirlwind of soirées, balls, and kindred festivities. The entertainments of Gen. BANKS and Col. HOLABIRD, together with the marriage of the lovely Miss ATOCHA, of Washington, D. C., to Capt. FRANKLIN, U. S. N., (brother to the Major-General of that name,) have created quite an excitement. New-Orleans is indeed very gay this Winter, as was evidenced by the brisk calling on New-Year's Day. Many a New-York fair one, on that Day, might have envied the retinue of carriages which were constantly in waiting before the residences of some of our New-Orleans belles.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE N. Y. TIMES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sunday, Feb. 7.

IMPORTANT ORDER ON CONSOLIDATION OF REGIMENTS.

It is stated that one of the most important orders issued by Secretary STANTON since he took office—one that shall have the happiest influence financially, and, in its culling of the officers in service, have the effect to reorganize the armies—will be published next week: an order to raise the cavalry and infantry regiments to 2,400 men each, and to do this by consolidation. Further enlistments of cavalry will also be stopped. It is a positive fact, that if the cavalry regiments in the field were full, the Treasury and the war would be burdened with 250,000 of this arm.

THE STRENGTH OF LEE'S ARMY.

Audacious demonstrations upon the lines of the Army of the Potomac by LEE cannot conceal the weakness of his forces. There are but fifteen thousand in front of MEADE. The rest of LEE'S troops are with LONGSTREET at Knoxville and in North Carolina.

A RADICAL SENTIMENT FROM REVERDY JOHNSON.

The Metropolitan Club of this city gave an entertainment last evening. Among the after-dinner speeches was a brilliant one by REVERDY JOHNSON, who declared Slavery to be hell-born, and that the Constitution should be amended so as to prohibit it forever.

THE TAX ON WHISKY.

The whisky strife is not yet composed. The advocates of a taxation of stocks on hand are confident that the House will not recede from its policy, and that a Conference Committee will not materially reduce the tax imposed by its vote.

NEGRO RECRUITING IN MARYLAND.

Col. S. M. BOWMAN, of the Colored Officers' Examining Board, has inspected the three negro regiments that Gen. BIRNEY has recruited in Lower Maryland—the Seventh, Ninth and Nineteenth United States Colored. He represents that every one of these troops was a slave—that not one can read or write—but that all are learning their soldierly duties with remarkable quickness. Such good care has been taken of them by Gen. BIRNEY, that out of the 3,000, only 150 have got sick in the late trying weather. A fourth regiment is forming, into which what is left of Slavery in St. Mary's County will soon be absorbed.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Feb. 7.

GEN. BLUNT'S COMMAND.

Maj.-Gen. BLUNT will leave for Gen. CURTIS'S Department to-morrow. He is to have command of the district of the Indian Territory, with his headquarters at Fort Smith, and he will be supplied with an ample army, not only for defensive, but offensive operations.

THE KANSAS SENATORSHIP.

Private information received to-day from Kansas, states the Legislature of that State yesterday agreed to go into an election for a United States Senator on Tuesday, in place of Gen. LANE, notwithstanding the fact that the majority of the present Legislature were elected with a distinct understanding that no election should take place during the present term, or before the new Legislature should assemble next Winter. Gen. LANE'S term expires on the 4th of March, 1865.

THE U. S. SUPREME COURT.

In the Supreme Court of the United States the causes argued the past week, in which GERRIT C. BRONSON and others are complainants, and the Lacrosse and Milwaukee Railroad Company are respondents, will be continued this week, after which will be taken up

No. 133.—The State Bank of Indiana versus HENRY VALLETTE.

No. 135.—THOMAS G. GAYLORD, Jr., et al., appellants, vs. JOHN KELSHAW, et al.

No. 136.—The Pacific Mail Steamship Company, plaintiffs in error, against WILLIAM H. JELLETT.

These will be followed by the other California cases.

REGULATIONS FOR TRADE.

The following Executive order has just been printed and promulgated:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, Jan. 26, 1864.

I, ABRAHAM LINCOLN, President of the United States, having seen and considered the Additional Regulations of Trade prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, and numbered LI., LII., LIII., LIV., LV., and LVI., do hereby approve the same; and I further declare and order that all property bought in for sale in good faith, and actually sold in pursuance of said Regulations LII., LIII., LIV., LV., and LVI., after the same shall have taken effect and come in force as provided in Regulation LVI., shall be exempt from confiscation or forfeiture to the United States. (Signed) ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

The following are the regulations referred to:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Saturday, Jan. 23.

LI.—The Commanding General having expressed the opinion, in reply to a letter addressed to him by the Secretary of the Treasury, on the 16th inst., that the restrictions on trade in the States of Missouri and Kentucky may now be safely removed, and the Secretary of War, in his letter of this day, Jan. 23, 1864, having approved that opinion, the Twenty-sixth Regulation of Trade, established with other regulations on the 11th of September, 1863, is so far modified, that all restrictions on trade in the States of Missouri and Kentucky are annulled and abrogated; and all products and goods may be freely taken into and transported within the said States as in time of peace; provided, however, that no products or goods shall be taken from such States, or either of them, into any other State declared to be in insurrection, or to any port in said State, heretofore blockaded, which has been, or may be, opened, except in compliance with the Regulations of September 11, 1863.

Restrictions upon trade into or from other States, and also upon the trade with States in insurrection, and part of said States, especially on the Mississippi and other navigable rivers, will be resumed, whenever, in the opinion of the President, such removal shall be found compatible with the military measures necessary for the suppression of the rebellion.

(Signed) S. P. CHASE, Sec'ry of the Treas'y.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Jan. 26, 1864.

LII.—All persons being or residing in any of the States declared to be in insurrection, whether within or beyond the lines of military occupation, may freely bring any goods or products within the State in which he may reside, to any place within such lines where there is a supervising Special Agent or Assistant Special Agent of the Treasury Department, for sale or other disposition; and so much of any regulation heretofore established as requires the obtaining of any previous authority or permit for bringing goods and products to the place of sale, is hereby rescinded.

III.—In all cases when the owner of the goods and products brought in for sale shall reside within the lines of military occupation, and shall take the oath prescribed by the Proclamation of the President, dated Dec. 8, 1863, and is not exempted from the amnesty granted by said Proclamation, or proved by affidavits to the satisfaction of the Supervising Special Agent or Assistant Special Agent, to be disloyal and hostile to the United States, such owner or his agent may receive the price of his goods and products without deduction, except for dues and fees to the Government, under the regulations of Sept. 11, 1863, or he may convey such goods and products, having paid said dues and fees, under a pass or permit, to such other place as he may choose for sale or other disposition; but whenever the owner of said goods and products shall not reside within the lines of national military occupation, such goods and products shall be sold by the Supervising Special Agent or Assistant Special Agent; and all such sales of goods and products shall take place on Monday of each week, at the place of receipt, and shall include all complete lots on hand at the time of sale. And the Supervising Special Agent, or the Assistant Special Agent, as the case may be, shall pay to said owner or his agent, if the said owner shall have taken said oath, and is not excepted from said amnesty, nor proved disloyal or hostile, twenty-five per cent of the gross proceeds of said sales, and shall pay the remainder of such proceeds, after deducting the necessary and proper expenses of sale, and one per cent as his additional compensation, into the Treasury of the United States, and shall give to the owner of each lot sold, or his agent, a receipt or certificate describing the property. But the aggregate compensation of no Supervising Special Agent, or Assistant Special Agent shall exceed the sum of five thousand dollars per annum, and at that rate for a less period; and each Supervising Special Agent or Assistant Special Agent charged with the receipt and payment of any money under any regulation of the Treasury Department, shall give bond to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury in the sum of fifty thousand dollars for the faithful performance of his duty as such Supervising or Special Agent or Assistant Special Agent, and for the punctual payment by him into the Treasury of the United States of all sums by him received and required by law or regulations to be so paid.

LIV.—All sales, whether private or public, shall be for notes of the United States or Treasury notes exclusively, and all proceeds of goods and products paid into the Treasury under the foregoing regulation, shall be restored without interest to the owner of the goods and products sold in case he shall establish, on return of peace and the full practical restoration of the authority of the Union, the title to said goods and products, and that since the sale thereof he has conducted himself in all respects as a good and loyal citizen of the United States, and has done nothing inconsistent with the terms of the oath prescribed by the President's Proclamation of Amnesty.

LV.—Nothing in either of the foregoing additional regulations shall authorize the conveyance of supplies beyond the lines of military occupation, or, except under the Regulations of Sept. 11, 1863, within said lines.

LVI.—The foregoing resolutions, numbered LII. LIII, LIV., LV. shall take effect and be in force within the lines of the several military departments in the insurrectionary States, whenever the Generals commanding, under authority from the President, and by proper orders promulgate the same. (Signed,) S. P. CHASE,

Secretary of the Treasury.

GEN. GRANT'S DEPARTMENT.

The Late Cavalry Fight in East Tennessee—Gen. Foster Relieved by Gen. Schofield—No Important Movements.

LOUISVILLE, SUNDAY, Feb. 7.

The Reporter of the Associated Press, in front of Gen. Grant's Army, has just arrived from Nashville. He states on the highest military authority in Nashville, that all the skirmishes recently reported are merely foraging fights between our own and the rebel cavalry. That Gen. PARK, on the night of the 4th, was at Knoxville in command of the Ninth Army Corps, and that communications had been cut off this side of Cumberland Gap. That Tazewell fight was unimportant, and did not effect the general situation.

The following has just been received, and by its silence on other matters, corroborates the above. It comes from the Correspondent of the Associated Press, and is dated POWELL'S Run Bridge, five miles East of Cumberland Gap:

"Citizens report that the rebels are concentrating between New-Market and Dandridge."

GEN. FOSTER RELIEVED.

LOUISVILLE, Sunday, Feb. 7.

Gen. SCOFIELD has assumed command of the Department of the Ohio, vice FOSTER, relieved.

Gen. BOYLE'S resignation has been accepted, and he has resumed the practice of law in this City.

Gen. HOBSON has been temporarily put in command of the forces in Kentucky, Gen. AMMON having been placed on the Court Martial at Cincinnati.

NEWS FROM THE SOUTH.

Destruction of a Blockade-Runner in Charleston Harbor—News from Virginia and East Tennessee.

FORTRESS MONROE, Sunday, Feb. 7.

The Richmond Examiner, of Feb. 3, has the following news:

CHARLESTON, Tuesday, Feb. 2.

The steamer Presto, Capt. HORREY, from Nassau Jan. 29, in attempting to run in about 2 o'clock this morning, got ashore off Sullivan's Island, and remains immovable. Most of the cargo, which is on Government account, will be saved in good condition. The enemy opened a heavy fire on the steamer at daylight, and continued it all day. It is believed that the vessel will be a total wreck.

The enemy have discontinued firing on Sumter. One hundred and thirty-six shots have been fired on the city from five o'clock yesterday to five o'clock this evening.

CHARLESTON, Friday, Feb. 5.

The enemy keep up an occasional fire on Sumter. Six shots were fired yesterday morning and three last night. Eighty shots were fired at the city to-day. The enemy's batteries and monitors kept up a slow fire on the wreck of the Presto.

FROM NORTH CAROLINA.

The Richmond Enquirer of Saturday, Feb. 6, says: One hundred and twenty Yankee prisoners from Newbern arrived yesterday, probably the crew of the gunboat Underwriter.

The Sentinel says: "Our pickets retired towards Kinston, N. C., after the fight at Batchelor's Creek."

SUSPENSION OF NEWSPAPERS.

The same paper says there is a great probability that all the newspapers in the Confederacy, except few doing Government work, will be obliged to suspend.

Richmond papers contain the following dispatches:

FROM VIRGINIA.

ORANGE COURT-HOUSE, Tuesday, Feb. 2.

Reports received here this evening from several sources state that Gen. EARLY captured a force of Yankees at Petersburgh, Hardy County, Virginia, estimated at eight hundred.

FROM EAST TENNESSEE.

MORRISTOWN, EAST TENNESSEE, Tuesday, Feb. 2.

There is a perfect dearth of news here. The situation is unchanged. The arrival of prisoners taken in the recent affair at Smithfield is announced. It is claimed that 109 of our men were captured.

The rebel accounts of the engagement does not differ material ly from that given by us.

MORRISTOWN, Friday, Feb. 5.

Trains are now running to Rogersville Junction. There is nothing of interest from the front.

A large force of Yankees, supposed to number about 8,000, have crossed the Tennessee River near Germansville. The object of the raid being no doubt the destruction of the iron-works in Cherokee County.

FROM MISSISSIPPI.

MOBILE, Thursday, Feb. 4.

Our forces occupy Corinth and Jackson. Nothing had been destroyed there, but everything was carried off. The Yankee cavalry, in strong force, crossed the Big Black, yesterday, and were met by the Jackson cavalry. A lively fight took place.

The Aspect of the Dano-German Question.

Denmark Asks for Delay and will Abrogate the November Constitution.

Favorable Speech on American Affairs by T. Milner Gibson.

The mails by the steamship Arabia reached this City from Boston at an early hour Saturday morning. We are thus in possession of our correspondence and files of European journals to the 23d ult.

THE DANO-GERMAN QUESTION.

THE VERY LATEST.

BERLIN, Saturday, Jan. 23.

The Danish Government has demanded a delay in order to assemble the Rigsrad, and with its concurrence to withdraw the November Constitution, and subsequently to fulfill the engagements entered into toward Germany in 1851 and 1852. In case this delay should be granted, which is probable, the Austrian and Prussian troops will not cross the Elder. A month is necessary for the convocation of the Rigsrad.

HAMBURGH, Jan. 23.

The Federal Commissioners have issued a proclamation, dated 21st inst., which says: Troops under the command of Field Marshal Wrangel, have crossed the frontier of the Duchies. Considering the protest made by several governments of the Federal Diet, we have commissioned General Hake to declare to Marshal Wrangel that we expected the usual notifications. We cannot recognise the troops as belonging to the Federal reserve, but we must submit to facts which are unavoidable. We have received instructions from the President of the Diet that the entry of the Austrian and Prussian troops would not prejudice or interfere with future orders respecting the occupation in form of execution and the administration of Holstein and Lanenburg, and that those troops would only pass through these Duchies. We therefore call upon the authorities and the inhabitants of the Duchies to give the Austrian and Prussian troops the required coöperation, and to receive them in a friendly manner.

Duke FREDERICK has replied to a deputation from Altona, that he hoped soon to be able to accept the invitation from Altona.

OUR LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

Denmark—Parliament—A Million of Volunteers—Milner Gibson on the War—Death of an English Confederate—War Preparations—The European Democracy—The Mexican Emperor — Thackeray — The Shakespeare Memorial—"How Not to Do It"—George Thompson in America—A Warning.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 23, 1864.

The question of greatest interest here, at the present moment, is, "Will there be war in Denmark?" The two armies confront each other across the Elder. Any hour we may hear the booming of artillery, as we hear things in these days, by telegraph. Still, I am very loth to give up my conviction that there will be no fighting. It seems preposterous that forty thousand men should attempt to resist half a million. If they do so, it will be only that help may come to them—but of that help I see little sign. What if King CHRISTIAN is father of the loveliest of Princesses, and grandfather of the future King of England; the newly-born seven-months' baby? Is not Queen VICTORIA also mother of the Princess Royal of Prussia, and the Princess of Hesse, and grandmother to the future Sovereigns of Germany? Honors are divided. What can England do but remain neutral, and tender good advice? After all, it is France that must decide. RUSSELL had scarcely refused to enter a congress before he wanted a conference. It was NAPOLEON'S turn to decline, and so "honors are easy."

The approaching meeting of Parliament is looked forward to with great interest. It is the chief ventilator—national safety valve—and scum of everybody's "great expectations." The affairs of America, Germany, China and Japan will be discussed with more or less wisdom, generally with less. Will Mr. ROEBUCK revive his motion for intervention? I think not. The Government finds its only safety in conciliating Messrs. CORDEN and BRIGHT. Mr. GIBSON, President of the Board of Trade, has just made a speech more thoroughly Northern in its tone than has yet come from any member of the Government. You may consider it certain that nothing will be done to injure the Federal cause, unless there should be a change of Administration. Will there be such a change? I think not. This Parliament expires so soon that members will not wish to risk a dissolution.

The resolution introduced into the Senate of the United States to raise a million of men to take Richmond, naturally provokes comment. That such a mass of men could be raised, moved, fed, managed, or prove effective, few believe. It is the common opinion that there are few men in the world competent to move great masses. If the onslaught of such numbers would be terrific, what would be a panic, occurring in such a vast and half-disciplined crowd? I presume that Gen. GRANT would be the first to veto such a levy en masse as that would be. The view of the war taken by the more sensible and conservative American writers must be nearer the true one. The war cannot be ended at a blow. There must be several campaigns and many battles. Large armies must be raised and expended. It is expected here, by those best informed of the condition of the South, that the military operations of 1864 will be more thorough, energetic, and brilliant, than any which have preceded them. The South, they say, was never so thoroughly aroused, nor so desperately determined.

The Times, of yesterday, made an avowal of British feeling which had the merit of frankness, at least. In commenting upon the speech of Mr. MILNER GIBSON, it blurted out what I have often asserted to be the real feeling of England, which was that the restoration of the Union, in any way, was contrary to the interests and opposite to the safety of England and of Europe, and, therefore, not to be desired. America united and at peace is a standing menace to England and the world. The Times clearly expresses, for the first time, the views which have governed it for three years. It tells the simple truth. England dreads the restoration of the Union. The cause of the South is her own cause. The South is fighting her battle. As long as this battle is fought with any degree of success, England will be neutral; but how hollow must be that neutrality, when the success of our party is her safety, and that of the other her greatest danger.

It is said that Mr. BANCROFT was able to count the prominent friends of the North in England on his fingers. I believe it. One of its enemies has just died, the Duke of Cleveland, at Raby Castle, one of the most magnificent residences in England—a castle that looks like a city. These residences of the English nobility are what Americans can scarcely conceive of. One English nobleman has a residence of 900 feet front, the gardens of which are 400 acres. The park and estate are on the same scale. It is of no use to expect such people to sympathise very deeply with American ideas of politics. But the selfish principle is the basis of most British feeling. The relations of the two countries are considered critical, and there are few Englishmen who do not look forward to war with the United States as soon as those States feel themselves in a condition to make it. There is, therefore, no let up in naval preparations. One thousand men are at work on the last launched of the great iron-clads. England, while doing all she can to avoid war, feels the necessity of being prepared for one which may burst upon her any day and from any quarter. There is doubt about the best build for ships—the best make for guns, and the naval and military authorities are conscious that they are feeling their way and trying costly experiments; but there is no help for it. Lord PALMERSTON knows that he can go to the country safely only on one ground—that he has done his best to keep it in a defensible position, with its power unimpaired. Still, the Richmond correspondent of the Times believes that the American Ironsides could destroy at one broadside any ship in the British navy.

GARIBALDI is moving for a democratic revolution in Italy. He appeals to a large party which is not satisfied with the "wait-a-little-longer" policy of VICTOR EMANUEL. MAZZINI, though he pleads not guilty to a conspiracy to assassinate the Emperor, acts in concert with GARIBALDI. KOSSUTH has proclaimed a revolt in Hungary. Poland is frozen up, but ready to burst out, perhaps, in the Spring. There is alarm and uneasiness—"a certain fearful looking forward" to what the world dreads. It is predicted that 1864 will be a year of solutions. I think the Emperors and Kings ought to have a congress, or the peoples may hold one without their leave. After all, the year may go on peacefully like other years, and quiet Europe look for another twelvemonth on the great spectacle of war in America.

The early Spring, however, will bring one new complication. The new Emperor of Mexico will visit his august brother Emperor in Paris, and remain with him long enough to become perfectly acquainted with his views, before embarking for Mexico. I see no reason to doubt that all this matter is settled, as I long since said it would be. France wants a great outlet in the West. Algeria and her East Indian Provinces are not sufficient. Mexico is to be the outlet for her surplus energies and intellect. There she will organize, educate, govern and direct industry. The Emperor hopes to build up a great empire in Central America, and to develop the resources of one of the richest countries in the world. You can judge, as well as I, what influence has been used by Southern diplomatists, in enabling him to form designs so farseeing and magnificent.

Mr. SALA tells us that when Americans asked him if THACKERAY would be buried in Westminster Abbey, he was ashamed to answer as he thought. The Abbey, in these days, is for Lords and soldiers. I think there is no man of letters now living in England, who, as such, would find sepulture there. A man must have other claims than those of genius. And the honor is not great to be buried in company with a mob of people, many of whom one would not care to remember, or would be glad to forget.

The effort to erect some kind of a national memorial to SHAKESPEARE has broken down, I believe, from sheer weight of flunkeyism. Several months have been spent in trying to get together a sufficiently distinguished committee, on the "Who's who?" principle. No plan for a memorial has been adopted. TOM TAYLOR headed a dramatic party, in favor of building a memorial Shakesperean theatre, where the plays of the great bard could be acted all the year round; but this idea was not adopted. After much fuss, the committee, without putting forward any programme, decided to ask the public for thirty thousand pounds, and to have a soirée. Mr. TAYLOR, and his literary friends, indignantly withdrew from the committee. I do not mention this matter as being of any great importance, but as an illustration of the English way of "how not to do it." I could give a hundred similar cases of movements that never move, associations that never associate, and plans that are never carried into execution.

Englishmen are strong in individual efforts, and work well enough in joint stock companies, when nothing is required but investment of capital and realization of profit, but they fail in comprehensive organization. Their charities are hopeless helter-skelter blunderings. Their great public enterprises are apt to be failures. Government seems a ser es of blunders, and the laws are a mass of absurdities and contradictions, which men despair of reforming. But men are better than their institutions, and get on in spite of them. Humanity endures much. Mrs. BROWNING asked, at the beginning of the American war—"Why don't the negroes rise?" One might ask of ten millions of Englishmen, "Why don't they rise?" Ask them, and they would tell you, perhaps, that they would only be crushed into deeper and more hopeless suffering. But the real reason probably is that they are used to their conditions and are hopeless of any better. In towns the more desperate break windows or steal, to be sent to prison. In the country set ricks of wheat on fire for the same purpose. The pauper is better off than the laborer, and the prisoner is better off than the pauper.

I do not see the way out. The rich are growing richer. The land is in fewer hands than it was twenty years ago. The millions are kept just above the point of starvation. If they save anything, it is only to keep them a little longer out of the workhouse. They are more crowded together than ever. Mr. BRIGHT wishes them to have land, but who will give it to them? It is a problem which is very difficult of solution. A crowded, landless peasantry are little better than slaves, which reminds me that our old Abolitionist friend GEORGE THOMPSON, has gone to America to see how the seed he planted thirty years ago is flourishing, and what sort of a crop it has produced. I remember a mob in Boston that would have hanged him on the Big Elm on the Common in those days. Will they give him a public reception now, I wonder? Times change, and men. Mr. SALA quotes RUSSELL LOWELL on the Mexican war. One might quote almost any American writer on almost anything to illustrate human changes. Men cannot bind themselves, and may find it more difficult to bind their posterity.

I write in a lull of great expectation as to events on both sides of the Atlantic. There is not one line of important news from any quarter, yet we seem to be surrounded by slumbering volcanoes which may burst out any moment. Spring is coming, and with it great events—certainly in America—probably in Europe. But it is like sailing in a fog at sea, or walking in one in London.

The news by the Persia is in this morning. The same intense cold seems to have spread over both hemispheres. It has not been so cold in France for twenty years. The rise in gold is awkward for those who have money to receive, but no one, even in England, is now fool enough to expect financial difficulties, North or South, to end the war. There is, however, something we do expect, and which I may as well warn those concerned to be prepared for. No town on the frontier or seaboard will be safe which is not well defended. The Southerners, from motives

Second Fire Zouaves.

This splendid regiment will probably arrive about 2 o'clock to-day. Most extensive arrangements have been made for their reception by the New-York Fire Department. Chief-Engineer DECKER has issued a circular to the Foreman of each company, requesting that the Foreman, Assistant Foreman and Fire Delegates be appointed to represent the company on this occasion, to be equipped as follows: red shirt, fire cap and dark fire coat, the officers to carry trumpets. The signal notifying the department of the arrival of the regiment will be twenty successive strokes of the fire-alarm bell, repeated three times. The department will form in Cortlandt-street, march up Broadway to Fourteenth-street and Eighth-avenue to Hudson-street, down Hudson-street to Clarkson-street, through Clarkson and Carmine to Sixth-avenue and Jefferson Market, where a fine collation will be provided them, prepared under the supervision of Chairman HENRY WILSON. The parade will, doubtless, be a very large and fine one; fourteen Engine companies, twelve Hose companies and four Hook and Ladder companies, have already signified their intention to parade, and many others will probably do so. The Zouaves will make Jefferson Market their headquarters during their stay in this city.

The Court will Protect Executors from Vexatious Litigation.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Barnard.

Hatch and others, Executors, &c. vs. Beebe Levingston, &c.—The plaintiffs in this action are executors of Robert Hogan's estate, and the holder of a certain fund which each of the several defendants claim to have paid to them exclusively. The executors were willing to pay the money into court, and have the various claimants settle their rights to it; the court, after hearing counsel, ordered the money to be paid to the clerk; and that executors be discharged from all liability to any of the parties.

Judgment for plaintiffs according.

Roswell D. Hatch for plaintiffs: S. K. & F. B. Wightman for defendants.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

Maj. MEANS' cavalry battalion, composed mostly of loyal Virginians, residents in Loudon County, recently returned from an extensive scout, during which they found no enemy, but discovered that a reign of terror existed among the people of the Loudon and Shenandoah Valleys, in consequence of the execution of the new rebel conscription, which sweeps every male person, between eighteen and fifty-five, into the rebel army. In view of these conscripting operations outside the enemy's military lines, Gen. SULLIVAN, commanding at Harper's Ferry, had ordered that a Secessionist be arrested, imprisoned, and held as hostage for every loyal man thus conscripted.

The steamship Columbia, from New-Orleans, Jan. 30, arrived yesterday afternoon. Our correspondent informs us that the approaching election of State officers is the all-engrossing theme in that direction, and that the political barometer is at fever heat. The Nominating Convention was to meet on the 2d inst. It was thought that the Hon. MICHAEL HAHN has the inside track for the nomination for Governor, although District Attorney WAPLES was prominently mentioned in connection with the office. T. J. EARHART was spoken of for Attorney-General, and ROBERT MONTGOMERY for Treasurer. There were evident preparations for a military movement, but where the intended blow would be struck was not made known.

A dispatch from Washington says that a reconnoissance in force from the Army of the Potomac was made on Saturday in the direction of the Rapidan, and that heavy cannonading and musketry were heard during the day, but no particulars were received. Another dispatch says that LEE has but 15,000 men in front of MEADE, the balance being with LONGSTREET and in North Carolina.

Richmond papers of the 3d have been received at Fortress Monroe. They contain little news. On the morning of the 2d inst. the blockade-runner Presto attempted to run into Charleston harbor, but was run ashore off Sullivan's Island, under the fire of our guns, and will be a total loss. The news from Virginia and East Tennessee is unimportant.

The latest war news from East Tennessee is to the effect that all the recent cavalry fights in that region have been mainly between foraging parties, and that no important movement on either side has taken place. Gen. FOSTER has been relieved by Gen. SCHOFIELD, who has assumed command.

Admiral LEE, Commanding the North Atlantic Blockading Squadron, advises the Secretary of the Navy of the destruction of the notorious blockade-runner Wild Dayrell, at New Topsail Inlet, where she was ashore and discharging her cargo.

GENERAL NEWS.

The steamship Ocean Queen from Aspinwall, Jan. 29, arrived at this port Saturday, bringing $365,938 in specie, and later news from the States of Central and South America. A treaty of peace has been concluded between New-Grenada and Ecuador, and good feeling is again established. There are rumors of a threatened disturbance between Peru and Spain, relative to the murder of some Spanish subjects in the interior. A curious step had been taken by the United States Consul at Callao, who had given the American flag to a foreign steam vessel, which it was generally understood had been purchased from the British by Gen. MOSQUERA, to be used in the war against Ecuador. The Peruvian Government have detained her. Two thousand one hundred corpses had been taken from the ruins of the burned church at Santiago. Many other lives were lost, and the bodies were utterly destroyed.

Via Havana we have later news from Mexico, from French sources. Under date of Jan. 5, Gen. BAZAINE writes that he that day occupied the city of Guadalajara, after an ineffectual attempt on the part of the Mexicans to hold the place. Reports as to whether Zacatecas is occupied by the French or not are conflicting. JUAREZ is said to be either at Monterey or Durango, having been deserted by nearly all his Ministers and the Gens. PARODI, AMPUDIA and ARAMBERRI. The recent affair at Morelia is represented as being very disastrous to the Liberals, whose loss in killed and wounded is estimated at 1,246 against 40 killed and 80 wounded on the side of the Interventionists. Two days after this fight the Liberals, 5,000 strong, are reported to have attacked San Luis Potosi, where they were defeated. TERAN, late Minister of Justice under the Juarez Government, had arrived at Havana en route to Spain, where he intends to reside on his family estate in Andalusia.

At an early hour on Saturday evening a very destructive fire occurred in the manufacturing establishment known as the Empire Works, situated in East Twenty-fourth-street, near Avenue A. The buildings were six stories in height, and extended from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-fifth streets. The fire broke out on the sixth story, and owing to the fact that it was impossible, by any ordinary means, to throw water to that height, the flames obtained such headway as to envelop the entire buildings before the powerful steam-engines could be brought to bear. The buildings and contents are almost a total loss. The damage will not fall much short of $200,000.

Our Albany correspondent announces the passage of the General Bounty Bill, on Saturday evening, just as it came from the Senate. This bill provides a general bounty of $300, from the State, but does not prohibit counties, towns or cities from increasing it—on the contrary, it expressly authorizes them to do so.

Capt. J. M. STREETMAN, Fifty-sixth Georgia Regiment, is out in a card, urging his fellow-soldiers to desert. His reason for this is, that "the rebellion must finally fail; better that it should do so soon and before the last poor fellow in the ranks is sacrificed to gratify the obstinacy and pride of the rebel leaders, who intend, in the last extremity, to save themselves by flying to a foreign country, which you cannot do, for the want of the means of living there."

The Stock Market was active at advanced prices for the Railways on Saturday and left off firm. Money in good supply at 7 per cent. Gold 158¾ at close of the day.

A Lesson from the Enemy.

The comments of the Richmond Examiner, which we published Saturday, upon the approaching Presidential election at the North, as well as those which are likely to issue in future from the same quarter upon the same subject, will furnish us with the most instructive reading that has yet emanated from the Confederacy. The speculations of the rebels as to what is likely to happen at the North are not of much value, because they rarely know the truth about what is actually occurring amongst us, and never know anything about the feelings of the people. But all that they say as to the effect which our course of action is likely to have on them and their fortunes, as to the influence of our various political changes upon public opinion at the South, is of great value, and ought to be as carefully noted by those who undertake to guide the popular action here, as the information of spies by the Commander-in-Chief.

There is certainly one subject, on which we may well take a lesson from them, and that is the art of bringing into play the whole resources of a country for purposes of offence and defence. Whichever else they may have done badly, this they have done well. They have certainly blundered as to the extent of their capacity, as well as to the extent of ours, but they have displayed a skill in the use of what strength they have, in marshaling it and using it at the right times and places, which has probably never been surpassed. There is certainly no case on record in which as much has been got out of five millions of people for military purposes, as the Confederate leaders have managed to get out of their followers during the last three years; and the reason is obvious. They have for years looked forward to a contest, not of this magnitude, but of the kind in which they are now engaged. The capabilities of the South have during this time been their constant study, whether they lay in the character of the people or the resources of the State. When they boasted in Congress and on the stump of what they would do if we came to blows, we all laughed. But the result has proved, that in so far as they were in error, it was due to ignorance of us, and not to an overestimate of themselves.

Such changes as they made in the Constitution of the United States before adopting it for their own use, were evidently made with the view of consolidating and strengthening the Executive, and thus making the Government better fitted to bear the strain of a great military emergency. The most notable of these was the addition of two years to the Presidential term, thus giving such incumbent a better chance for carrying out a fixed policy, of getting used to his work, and bringing the strong points of his character into contact with it before being ousted—to say nothing of decreasing the number of elections, which, as long as the population was small, the Government cheap, and the country peaceful, were simply incidents in a progress which, without them, would perhaps have been monotonous, but which, in a period such as that through which we are now passing, are likely to take the character of immense convulsions, that shake society to its very foundations. Few people at the North, when we first heard that JEFFERSON DAVIS had been elected for a term of six years, realized what a source of strength this long term of office might prove; there are few people at the North who do not now begin to realize it very thoroughly. If our Presidential election involved simply a change of Presidents, its occurrence in the midst of a great civil war, complicated by the presence of such a question as Slavery, would be well calculated to rouse anxiety; but involving as it may, a complete change in the whole machinery of our administrative system which is charged with the conduct of war, calling 800,000 men to the field, and which has to provide for a debt of nearly 2,000,000,000, it is something which nobody can contemplate without alarm. The South, for precisely the same reason, looks forward to it with hope. It would be hard to make any comment on it that would more effectively point its dangers than the following from the Examiner:

"It is hard to forecast the effect of this election upon the progress of the war. It is safe to infer, however, that any change will be benefical to the South. LINCOLN and his party are so irrevocably committed to, and indissolubly linked with, the continuance of the war, that we can hope for no peace from them save by utter exhaustion of the means of prosecuting it. If they are driven from power, they will become embittered opponents of their successors, even if they should adopt a warlike policy, and will prove a formidable obstacle to its successful maintenance.

Although a military President might be supposed to be naturally warlike, it by no means follows. Unwilling to imperil his reputation, and, like most soldiers, more sensible to the evils of war than bloodthirsty politicians, a General in power would probably seek an accommodation. At all events, the elevation of a new man would remove the medley of fanatics and rogues who now close every outlet from the present calamitous war. If not immediately operative, it would, at all events, give some ground for the hope that both the Confederacy and the United States, as well as humanity in general, might be relieved from the misfortunes which the most shameless and obstinate wickedness persist in heaping upon them'."

Gen. Hancock's Command—A Rallying Cry for New-York.

Maj.-Gen. HANCOCK, Commander of the Second Army Corps, who bears a commission from the War Department for the recruitment of his corps to fifty thousand men, arrived in New-York yesterday for the purpose of setting on foot measures for the filling up of the regiments of his command belonging to this State. These number no less than nineteen regiments of infantry and one battery of artillery, the organizations being as follows:

Sixty-first New-York.
Sixty-third New-York—Irish Brigade.
Sixty-ninth New-York—Irish Brigade.
Eighty-eighth New-York—Irish Brigade.
Fifty-seventh New-York.
Fifty-second New-York.
Seventh New-York (Detachment.)
Sixty-sixth New-York.
Sixty-fourth New-York.
Eighty-second New-York (Second Regt., N.Y.S.M.)
One Hundred and Fifty-second New-York.
Forty-second New-York (Tammany Regiment.)
Fifty-ninth New-York.
One Hundred and Eighth New-York.
Tenth New-York (Battalion.)
Thirty-ninth New-York (Garibaldi Guard.)
One Hundred and Twenty-fifth New-York.
One Hundred and Twenty-sixth New-York.
One Hundred and Eleventh New-York.
Company G, First New-York Artillery.

With such a representation, may we not say that the mission of Gen. HANCOCK is preeminently a business which touches New-York? It is indeed so, and we expect to see the call responded to by one of those splendid efforts which our State is capable of making and has already made so often. To this end we should be glad to see public effort and private zeal concentrate themselves on this specific business; and if so, there is no reason why we should not, between now and the expiration of the term of the National bounties, on the 1st of March, fill up these nineteen regiments to the maximum. The number required for this purpose is, we believe, about ten thousand men.

There are several considerations which should give an extra fillip to the recruiting of Gen. HANCOCK'S regiments, and which, while stimulating general effort in his behalf, are of a nature to appeal powerfully to those who design entering the service of their country. And first there is the nature of the service to which Gen. HANCOCK'S command will be assigned. By the terms of the order under which he is filling up his corps it is to be assigned to "special service." What this service is does not appear, but without indicating any specific mode of operating, we think public anticipation does not greatly outrun probability when it fixes Richmond as the objective which will be aimed at by HANCOCK'S column. It has been often remarked, and we have ourselves shared the sentiment, that were a call made for volunteers for the express purpose of taking Richmond, it would be responded to with enthusiastic alacrity. We do not take it upon ourselves to outrun any utterance of those at the head of affairs, and say that this is the mission for which the Second Corps is designed, yet we make bold to prophesy that those who act on this supposition will not be greatly mistaken. Here, then, is a glittering point to attract all those who, disappointed at the untoward fortunes of the Army of the Potomac, wish to cast in their lot with a column which holds out the promise of new experiences, and which we hope to see ere long under way, with "Richmond and our Union prisoners" as its battle cry.

But it is not merely that the service to which the Second Corps is to be assigned presents the charm of new experiences: those who cast in their lot with this command will become heirs to all the old glories and traditions of a corps which stands out conspicuous among the splendid corps of the Army of the Potomac—the corps which SUMNER led through the battles of the Peninsula, which shattered and broke the army of JOHNSTON before Richmond, which illustrated its spirit at Antietam by the five thousand of its members it left dead and wounded on that bloody field, which lit up the gloom of the first Fredericksburgh by heroism unsurpassed in military annals, which almost alone withstood and repulsed the fierce impetuosity of the rebel charges at Chancellorsville, which bore the brunt at Gettysburgh and claims the first honors of that memorable and splendid victory. In paying the Second Corps this tribute, we do not mean to intimate that it possesses any inherent superiority in fighting qualities over others in the Army of the Potomac; but what we do say is that, having been fated to pass oftener through the fiery ordeal than any of its peers, it has ever emerged with its honor brightened by the trial. And while its captures from the enemy of guns, prisoners and colors rival those of any corps, it has the proud satisfaction of knowing that not a single color has ever been wrested from it. Growing up with this corps and sharing its fame and fortunes, Gen. HANCOCK has risen into the esteem of the army and the country as a soldier of unpassed gallantry, energy and ability. In command of the independent army which he will have, when his corps is recruited to the number designed, we may look forward to brilliant exploits on his part.

These special considerations prompting the enlistment of the best energies of New-York for the filling up of the regiments of HANCOCK'S command belonging to this State, are in addition to, but also inclusive of the general considerations that urge every effort to stimulate volunteering. But three weeks now remain during which the large Government bounties will be given; at the end of this period, volunteering will, necessarily, greatly decline, and the fewer the men that are now raised the harder will the draft bear on all. Let us, therefore, see to it that HANCOCK'S ten thousand are promptly forthcoming. Let New-York make one of her magnificent efforts and they will be forthcoming.

THE COPPERHEADS AND THE DRAFT.—The late order for the draft on the 10th of March makes the Copperheads begin to hiss again. The possibility that they may be called upon and compelled to do their part toward maintaining the Government, brings out afresh the hatred which fills their hearts. Thus we find the Daily News calling upon Gov. SEYMOUR "to redeem now, at this late day, his pledges of last Summer" to his friends, and "to protect them in this new emergency;" and while thus calling upon the Governor to start the flame of revolution, it exclaims, "Heavens and earth! Has it come to this, that the people of New-York have no recourse but to revolution against oppression?"

The News may call upon the Governor, and call again. It will be in vain. The Governor went near enough to the abyss of revolution last Summer. He looked over its edge, and what little he saw of it was quite sufficient to keep him from ever throwing himself down. This draft will be enforced if the men are not otherwise raised in time, as the former one was, and the Governor will not lift a hand to prevent or hinder it.

We cannot but wish sometimes that these men among us who whine or howl so about "oppression" could once have a chance to know what oppression really is. If they could only be changed off for some good Union men in rebeldom, so that they might compare for a brief period the two situations, it would be a very good "swap." What is the state of things there on the question of military service? The bill which passed the rebel Senate a few days ago will enable us to form something of a judgment of it. By that bill, all white men residents in rebeldom, aliens or otherwise, between the ages 18 and 55, are not made subject to draft, but declared to be "in the military service of the Confederate States," not for three years or six, but "for the war." But even this is not enough. All persons between 45 and 55 that are not in the army are ordered to "enroll themselves," under pain of being conscribed into the army in the field, and out of these and others unfit for military service are to be made all details "for provost and hospital guards, commissary, quartermaster and nitre bureau agents, clerks and guards for service in enforcing the Conscript Acts."

There are some few exemptions made—officers of the Confederacy and of the States, ministers who were discharging their duties on April 10, 1862, and still are so doing, one editor of every newspaper published since that date, and such journeymen printers as are indispensable for printing it, apothecaries, physicians who have been practicing for seven years past, and teachers of twenty children, who have been teaching for two years, and the overseers on plantations where there are twenty slaves—these are exempted. No discharge from the army is valid unless the disability still exists. Having furnished a substitute makes no difference.

Truly the Southern people seem destined to drink the cup of oppression to the dregs. But what shall we say of these Northern Copperheads, who have not a word of reprehension for the evils which are forced upon them, but are loud in execration of the light burdens which we must bear, to be able to raise up that people from the oppression which is grinding them to powder?

THE POLICE BILL AT ALBANY.—Why does not the Legislature take action on the Police Bill? It cannot be from any doubt of its essential justice or of the importance of a prompt decision. We have a double set of Police Commissioners, each claiming authority over the Police force, and both waiting for decisive action at the hands of the Legislature or of the courts. Meantime, questions arise about the payment of the men, which tend to postpone their just claims, and the whole force is demoralized by the delay to which the matter is subjected.

We see indications that the old bane of all heathful legislation—personal and factious politics,—is poisoning the sentiment and postponing the action of the Legislature on this subject. The great difficulty seems to be to agree upon names. Every few days a new bill is introduced, either enlarging the board or changing the names of some of the members of it. There are apparently two or three factions in each party which quarrel among themselves for control over the board or for representation upon it, with a great deal more vehemence than they struggle to preserve the force itself from destruction. This is wrong and mischievous. The main object of all rightly disposed persons should be to keep the police out of politics—to remove it, so far as possible, from partisan control, and to build up its efficiency and its character. We see in some quarters a sharp effort to exclude Mr ACTON, the President of the board. No greater mistake could possibly be commited; and the effort, in our judgment, can only have its origin in some paltry political jealousy or resentment. The universal sentiment of the public bears testimony to the energy, zeal, intelligence and effectiveness with which he has discharged the duties of his office. His experience, as well as that of his colleague, Mr. BERGEN, is invaluable, and should not be lightly thrown away.

We see not what possible valid objection can be urged against retaining the present Union members of the board, and then calling on the Democrats to nominate an equal number of good men from their party for the same appointment. It would be well if they could agree upon two of the men appointed by Gov. SEYMOUR, as such a course would tend greatly to harmonize public sentiment on the subject, and smooth the way to a settled and efficient system. But they should decide upon something at once, and relieve our City from its present suspense on the subject. Every day's delay only aggravates the difficulties and embarrassments which surround it.

AMUSEMENTS.

BELLINI'S opera of "Norma," in which Mme MEDORI made so great a success here and in Boston, will be given to-night at the Academy of Music. The matinée on Saturday was triumphantly successful. There was not standing-room in any part of the parquet, balcony or first circle.

The announcements at the various places of amusement, to-night, are as follows: At Wallack's, "Rosedale;" at the Winter Garden, the "Ticket-of-Leave Man;" at Niblo's Garden, the "Connie Soogah;" at the Olympic, a new burlesque called the "Ill-treated Il Trovatore," and a farce; at Barnum's Museum, dwarfs, giants, albinos, and a new drama, called "Helvei, or the Galley Slave of Toulon;" at Hope Chapel, a new series of views in the stereoscopticon.

A new and handsome equestrian establishment, called the Hippotheatron, and located in Fourteenth-street, opposite the Academy of Music, will be opened to-night. The entertainments are of a sumptuous kind, and the establishment, we doubt not, will prove a well managed and profitable enterprise.

Mrs. CLARA M. BRINKERHOFF, well known as a vocalist and teacher, has just composed a patriotic song, called One Flag or No Flag. The melody is of a popular character, and the sentiment of the words will commend them to the loyal masses. The song is published by WM. HALL & SON.

The annual ball of the Melo-Choreans takes place at Irving Hall on Easter Monday. It is an interesting affair, from the fact that most of the public characters connected with the musical and dramatic professions attend it.

We are happy to announce that a grand testimonial concert has been profferred to Mr. HARRISON of Irving Hall, by a number of his admirers. No one is more thoroughly deserving of the compliment. The entertainment takes place on the 3d of March. A grand orchestra, a powerful chorus, and several of the most eminent vocal and instrumental soloists now in the country, will assist.

"Thomas-à-Beckett" is the name of a well written tragedy by Major ALEXANDER HAMILTON. Some of the scenes are exceedingly powerful.

The Annual Fancy Dress Ball of the Arion Society takes place at the Academy of Music on Thursday next. It is always the best of the season.

Two excellent concerts take place to-night; one at Dodworth's Saloon, for the introduction of a new American pianist, Mr. PEASE; the other at Niblo's Saloon, for the benefit of a remarkable boy violinist, Master EMIL MOLLENHAUER. Particulars of both can be found in our advertising columns.

Mlle. CANISSA gave a concert at Irving Hall on Saturday night. It was badly attended and uninteresting, except when Mr. HABELMAN sung, or Mr. S. B. MILLS played. A young lady violinist, too, Miss TORDY, was good. She produces a good tone, has some execution, and with study will make an artist.

Mrs. H. C. WATSON will give a reading from the poets to-morrow night at Chickering's Rooms.

THE BROADWAY AMPHITHEATRE.—The Bedouin Arabs, who were so popular at the Alhambra Pavilion last fall, are the leading attraction at Mr. LENT'S Amphitheatre, No. 485 Broadway. Their wonderful performances and strange gyrations have attracted crowded houses nightly. Mme. LOUISE TOURNAIRE, the most graceful of riders, with other well known equestrians, have contributed largely to the amusement of the public.

HOWE'S CIRCUS.—Mlle. MARIETTA RAVEL, the celebrated tight-rope dancer, has been engaged at this establishment, Nos. 199 and 201 Bowery, and will appear nightly in some of her most remarkable acts, as will also Mr. JOHN DENIER, the gymnast. The entire performances in the arena will be changed for this week, and will comprise new and original features.

VAN AMBURGH & CO.'S MENAGERIE.—The collection of rare animals in the old Chinese Museum buildings, Nos. 539 and 541 Broadway, will well repay a visit, and afford a great deal of instruction as well as amusement. The number and variety of zoological curiosities is very great, and some of them very interesting. Among the most remarkable are two white peacocks and a pair of Japanese hogs. These specimens of swinish nature are as strange-looking creatures as any we have yet seen from the antipodean empire from which they come. The performance of the elephants, monkey and ponies afford a large amount of hilarity, and a couple of hours may be spent very pleasantly at this truly great exhibition of animals. Parents should not neglect to take their children to so attractive and instructive a place of recreation.

GRAND SACRED CONCERT.—To-morrow evening a grand sacred concert will be given by Mr. GEORGE LEACH, at the Church of the Messiah, (Dr. OSGOOD'S,) in which he will be assisted by Mrs. Mozart, Mrs. Jennie Kempton, Miss Flint, Mr. Geary, Mr. J. R. Thomas, Mr. Henry C. Timm, Mr. Geo. W. Morgan and other artists. The programme is of varied excellence, being made up of selections from Mr. LEACH'S new work "Laus Domino," and including also several new pieces of patriotic music.

FROM ALBANY.

Passage of the General Bounty Bill—No Restrictions upon the Offering of Local Bounties.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

ALBANY, Saturday, Feb. 6, 1864.

The first real debate of the session, when something worth contending for was at stake, occurred last evening in the Assembly, in considering the Special Bounty Bill. A minority, in which was included the entire New-York City delegation, opposed that feature of the bill which prohibits paying local bounties to increase the State bounty. It was argued on the one hand that if the bill passed with this provision included in it, enlistments in cities would immediately cease for lack of local stimulus, which has heretofore been found effective in promoting enlistments. On the other hand, it was argued that the passage of the bill giving a State bounty of three hundred dollars, but prohibiting competition, would promote enlistments in the country, and men would not be drawn away from their respective towns in the country to enlist in the city by the high bounties offered there. As the debate progressed, it become a contest between the claims of the country to gain credits for its men, and of the city to make its capital available. It was not of course granted by advocates of the rights of cities, that large bounties would or should deplete the rural districts of arm-bearing men. It was held with much reason that large bounties are required in cities, where wages are high, to induce men to enlist. It was evident that, as a majority of the members are from the country, so the majority favored a law that would prevent competition. There was, however, I think, a feeling that there might be an injustice in refusing to cities the privilege of paying such bounties as they desire to. It was this feeling and the determined opposition of the members from New-York and the southern counties, which finally determined the House to leave the bill for further consideration before ordering it to third reading. It was a late hour and after a stormy debate that this conclusion was reached. The bill came up again this morning as special order, and with certain amendments and motions pending, was laid upon the table. The General Bounty Bill was subsequently passed, and this in effect decides the question of prohibiting competition by the offer of local bounties. This bill, which has already passed the Senate, was ordered to third reading by the House, this morning, after very brief consideration, and by an almost unanimous vote. It was subsequently read the third time and passed the House precisely as it came from the Senate. The bill expressly grants the power of offering local bounties, and without limiting the amount, as will be seen by consulting the twenty-second section. It is doubtful whether the Special Bounty Bill will be again taken up. P. D.

MISS DICKENSON TO-NIGHT.—Miss ANNA E. DICKENSON will speak at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, to-night, on "Words for the Hour." Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER will preside.

PERSONAL.—Maj.-Gen. HANCOCK arrived in the City on Saturday and is at the St. James Hotel.

Mr. E. N. Dickerson and Mr. Jerome's Steam-Yacht, the Clara Clarita.

NOTE FROM MR. DICKERSON.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

When the controversy about the Navy began, and an attempt was made to divert public attention from the ships-of-war to me, I admitted in print, for the purposes of this discussion, that I was profoundly ignorant of a steam-engine, and supposed a cylinder head to be a full moon; and I had hoped that so much of a concession would have satisfied those who seem so anxious to attack me. But I find myself mistaken; and Mr. DONALD MACKAY, who never saw me, says I am a "monomaniac," and ought to be "punished and made an example of." Mr. BAIRD, who knew nothing of the matter at all, says I did not make the plans of the valve gear of the Kin-Kiang, which did go very fast; Mr. RUTHERFORD says that I was not invited to a certain trial trip when my own machinery was to be tried; and now Mr. JEROME finishes the list by saying that he "is done with me," (which is cool, considering that I never in my life had any business relation of any kind with him,) because I had something to do with a boat which, he says, didn't go very fast. These are very distressing circumstances indeed, but I hope, by keeping truth on my side, to survive them all.

Mr. JEROME says that Mr. ROWLAND'S statement in regard to his yacht is so "erroneous and unjust," that he must publish the facts "as far as he knows them," which is not very far; and I take notice that he don't publish those he does know.

And, first, Mr. ROWLAND'S statement, so far as I am concerned, is entirely true. I did not see Mr. ROWLAND on the subject, however, before he wrote his letter, nor since, as I was at home sick, and sent my note by a servant. His answer came by a messenger, and the original was sent direct to the TIMES; so that we had no conference on the subject; and the statements made by him are not my statements at all, but no doubt they are true.

Secondly—The boiler of the boat was bought by Mr. FORBES before he ever spoke to me on the subject, and he then told me that he had bought the engine if it could be adapted to run a screw of a little boat he proposed to build. I told him that any engine could be so adapted; and when I saw this one I suggested the best way of doing it. I knew nothing of the size of the boat, its uses, or who was its owner, and never saw it till after it was built, and the engine and boiler were in it. Mr. FORBES is not here to speak on the subject, but if he were, he certainly would not say that I told him that an ordinary sixteen-inch horizontal shop engine "was just what he wanted" to drive a yacht of about 200 tons, whose cross section is about one-sixth that of the Persia. A man must be more ignorant than I have admitted myself to be, to have such an opinion as that, and Mr. Jerome knows that it was not my opinion; and he knows it in this way, and I challenge contradiction.

Before the boat ever left the dock, Mr. RIGGS, a friend of Mr. JEROME, one day at the Union Club said to me in substance that he had been on board the yacht, and thought it a very poor arrangement. I replied that I agreed with him exactly, which seemed to surprise him, for he asked me at once whether it had not been made on my plans. I stated to him what the facts were, and he said that Mr. JEROME did not so understand it. To this I replied that I never had exchanged a word with Mr. JEROME on the subject, and did not know till the engine was in the boat that he owned it. I explained to Mr. RIGGS my connection with it, as above stated. In a day or two afterward Mr. JEROME met me, and remarked, rather complainingly, that I had disparaged his yacht to his friend, Mr. RIGGS. I said no; that I had simply stated the facts as they were, and had agreed with Mr. RIGGS' opinion about the boat. He then asked my advice about it, which I gave, which was to employ some one to build a small tug-boat and put the engine in it, by which he would save his money, or a part of it, and if he wanted a steam yacht, to have a proper engine built for one. He said he would do so. In a few days Mr. CHARLES H. HASWELL, the engineer, called on me and said that he was employed by Mr. JEROME to estimate and report upon the cost of taking out the engine, and putting it into a tug, and asked the dimensions of the machinery. I advised him not to fix the size of his tug till the engine had worked, and its power was known, which he approved of. Meanwhile, as he told me, there had been a letter written to Washington offering to sell the tug, when built, to the Government. This, I supposed, ended the matter so far as the yacht was concerned; and as it was all done before the boat was ever moved by steam, I did suppose that no man who knew these facts could have believed that my opinions were that the engine was "just what he wanted" to drive the yacht.

Mr. HASWELL, in furtherance of his instructions, visited the boat long before she was moved by steam, and I certainly supposed that he would have gone on to remove the machinery, as I had advised before it was ever tried, but for my suggestion to the contrary.

I never saw this machinery more than six times in my life; I never knew how large or what sort of a boat it was to drive till the boat was built; I never was employed by any person in the matter to have or express any opinion whatever about the ratio between this engine and the vessel; and the only thing I ever undertook to do (and this was without compensation and merely voluntary) works perfectly.

Whether a 16-inch stationary engine, with about 24 feet of grate bars, without a blower, can drive a 200 ton vessel with one-sixth the immersed cross-section of the Persia, at the speed desirable for a yacht, I presume no one will differ with me in opinion in saying that it won't. It will drive such a boat ten miles an hour if a blower is put to the fire, which, with the short pipe of the boat, instead of the long chimney of a factory, has scarcely any draft; but I told Mr. JEROME and Mr. RIGGS both that three times that power was needed and that it could be put into one-third the space of this engine, and all this before it was known by experiment how fast the boat could go.

My interview with Mr. JEROME was apparently perfectly frank, and he took my advice to remove the engine, as I thought, in good part; and I now cannot imagine any motive for the attack on me.

As to the trial trip, I received a written invitation at my office at five minutes before twelve to go at twelve from the Novelty Works. If I had received it in time I should have gone; not for the purpose of seeing the yacht go, but for the purpose of forming an opinion about the tug which Mr. HASWELL was to build, and which I supposed, till now, was to be built. I was told afterwards that the engine was run with a closed throttle—if so, it ought not to go. But as I was not employed or paid by any one about it, and had no interest in the success of an old shop engine, I did not consider my presence of any consequence. If Mr. JEROME had not decided to remove the engine, I should have taken some pains to find out for him just how fast it could drive his yacht, but I did not expect that it would do more than such a machine generally does; and as I neither built nor designed it, I was not responsible even for its doing so much. It is, however, the best balanced small engine I ever saw run. Yours truly,

EDW. N. DICKERSON.

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

Reconnoissance in Force on Saturday—Heavy Cannonading and Musketry Heard in the Direction of the Rapidan.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Feb. 7.

Information has reached here that yesterday morning a reconnoissance in force started from the Army of the Potomac, and that considerable cannonading took place at Morton's Ford, on the Rapidan, during the day, and at five o'clock in the afternoon musketry began and continued until dark.

From the Southwest.

CAIRO, Sunday, Feb. 7.

The steamer Atlantic, from New-Orleans, with 323 bbls. of molasses, and 321 hhds. of sugar and much other freight, arrived to-day.

The steamship Emma was fired into on the 5th, fifteen miles below Helena, with cannon and musketry. The shells were filled with Greek fire, three of which exploded in various parts of the boat, setting her on fire; but the flames were extinguished.

The steamer Baker, with 700 bales of cotton, from out of the Tennessee River, was seized at Paducah yesterday by the military authorities, for violation of the trade regulations.

There was an extensive fire at Memphis on the night of the 4th, consuming a block of brick buildings at the corner of Second and Monroe streets. Loss unknown.

Destruction of a Notorious Blockade Runner.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Feb. 7.

The following dispatch was received at the Navy Department this morning:

U. S. FLAG SHIP MINNESOTA,
OFF NEWPORT'S NEWS, Feb. 6, 1864.

Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy:

The supply steamer Newbern has arrived. The Sassacus, Lieut.-Commander ROE, and the Florida, Commander CHAMP, have destroyed the new and fast blockade runner Wild Dayrell, near New Topsail Inlet, where she had got ashore and discharged most of her cargo. S. P. LEE,

STATE SOVEREIGNTY.

Considered Historically, Conventionally and Geographically.

What we call States never were such in the strict sense of the term. There never was a moment in history in which they were independent, sovereign Powers, that is—according to Mr. LINCOLN's most true and terse definition—"having no human power above them." Take the largest of them, or the most historical among them; neither New-York nor Massachusetts were ever sovereign States, like Britain, France, Spain, or even Portugal. They never had a war with any other nation carried on in their own name, and in their own sovereignty; they never had a treaty of peace with another nation, or one of commerce, amity or alliance; they were never acknowledged as sovereignties by any other nation, or ever sought such recognition. To this day, New-York and Pennsylvania have never had conceded to them what, by the law of Nations, has been freely given to Chili, Hayti, and even Liberia. They were not sovereigns before the Revolution; they did not assume to act as such during the Revolution. No State declared itself independent in its separate capacity. "By the joint declaration in 1776, the colonies held themselves out to the world, and made treaties, not as separate and independent sovereignties, but as one united nation, known, in that capacity alone, to foreign Powers." As colonies, they passed from the sovereignty of Great Britain into and under the collective sovereignty of all the similar colonial Powers with whom history and the shaping God of history had connected them. If, at the close of the war which destroyed British sovereignty, any of them had thus attempted to break out of history, on the ground of the absolute right of each part to act for itself, it could only have given the same right to every subordinate municipality included within its asserted independence. It would have been theoretically and actually an entire disintegration. When the great bond of the parent country was loosed, there was no other historical unity, no other sovereignty, than that which had kept them together during the long struggle that resulted in making them a nation collectively—one sovereignty, known as such to all the other political sovereignties of the world. It was this that had "raised and maintained armies;" it was this that had asserted independence; it was this that received and appointed Ambassadors; and, finally, it was this that made the treaty of peace, securing the national independence, and so making it for the whole, that even if any part had claimed, and been permitted to stay out, it would only have been to lose all the benefit of the treaty of recognition, and revert to the old dominion. In short, they emerged from one sovereignty to find themselves under another; and this was the only way in which the civic life could historically have its transmission as one civic life passing from the parent, unbroken in its continuity though changed in form.

Any other result of the American revolution would have been utter disorganization. It would have been revolution in that ultra sense which claims the right of self-government, absolute and unlimited, as belonging to every part, and every part of every part entering into any historical whole—a claim of right wholly abstract, having no regard to the inherent righteousness of the proceeding, and to be asserted simply at the pleasure of the party or parties, making it. This would not be a transmission of civic life, but a political death, out of which God and history might afterward cause to rise some organic existence, but only as a new thing, having no previous connection with any historical vitality. In view of such a claim, and such a meaning of the word, our national birth-struggle was not a revolution. The term, as thus applied, is a misnomer. It was not a fight of the barricades, bent only on change and destruction. It was a great assertion of constitutional organic law, and should be classed among those other great movements in English history which have been called revolutions, but were, in fact, organic through violent changes, only giving a new and more organic action to the everliving national forces.

So our American contest stands side by side with those of 1649 and 1688. Like them, it was creative instead of destructive and disintegrating. True, it ended in a severance from the parent stem. But this was solely owing to the colonial and distant relation. Had it taken place nearer to the mother country, or on its home territory, then, instead of a severance, it mrght have resulted in giving the American claim preponderance in the national polity, and making it a settled part of the British constitution. As it was, the sovereignty passed whole and unbroken. As it was one war, so it ended in one peace. As it was one birth-struggle, so there came from it one political life. The treaty in which it resulted, was a treaty of recognition. It did not make the new nation, but only ratified what before existed. The Articles of Confederation, though using language designed to please the pride of independence in those late colonial municipalities, most distinctly recognized this same idea of a national unity previously existing, as the grouud, the cause of these articles themselves, and not, at all, as their effect. Had any portion refused such acknowledgment, there would have been as strong a reason for forcing this fraction into unity, as there was to declare independence of the mother country.

The young nationality was at first very flexible; the ties that bound the parts together were suffered to remain loose, for that, at the time, was thought to be better for the young growth than greater stringency. But the nation was before any conventional constitution, and never yielded that prime attribute of nationality, namely, the power to make such constitution or organic law as the national will, guided by the national intelligence, and acting through settled organic processes, might demand as most expedient for the national well-being. And hence, when the time came, arrangements were made for this greater stringency, as productive of greater strength, and for drawing closer the national ties, as demanded by the higher good and unity of the whole. The old Confederacy was a nationality just as much as the one represented by the late Constitution—as perfect in idea, we mean, though having far less of actual strength and vitality. It is a fundamental error, we deem it, to date our national life from the later era. It is putting the cause for the effect, the organic result for the very principle of organization itself.

But what if some one of these parts, or of these States, had refused to be brought within this circle of unity; would it have been allowed, ought it to have been allowed, to maintain this attitude? We answer unhesitatingly in the negative. Let us suppose, for example, that New-Jersey, either as maintaining her allegiance to Britain, or as claiming to be a sovereign State, had refused all participation in the national struggle, or to enter, in any way, into the Confederacy. Would New-York, and Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania, and Virginia, have recognized any such claim, any more than New-Jersey herself would have allowed it, had it been made by any county or district within her own limits? Would WASHINGTON have permitted himself to be stopped in his march from New-York to Philadelphia by any such assumed State sovereignty, claiming respect for its neutrality, and insisting upon the sacred immunity of its soil? A case of necessity, it might be said, and necessity knows no law. But necessity is law, and law is necessity. It is this very organic force of history of which we are speaking. The preservation of the whole, the well-being of the whole, demanded that this petty sovereignty of New-Jersey, this Duke of York's land-patent, should be thus made to yield. Necessity, indeed! but has not that necessity existed ever since? Was it ever stronger than it is now? Did it not exist at the time of the Articles of Confederation, and of the adoption of the Federal Constitution, both of them the products, and alike the products, of this preëxisting national wholeness? They were, indeed, formally presented to all the States, but only that thus they might obtain the sanction of the people as the collective nation determining its organic law, in its outworking as well as in its inward binding energy.

But what if this high and mighty sovereignty, this "patent of New-Jersey," so granted as aforesaid, had stubbornly refused to make in any way, before, during or after the Revolution, any part of this national whole? Can we suppose that New-York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, &c., would, or could, have permitted such a blank to remain in the body politic, or have allowed such a chink or chasm to mar that geographical and historical unity which God had made, and which conventions, great or small, could only declare as something already existing and to be provided for? Talk of necessity! it existed as strongly in 1787 as in December, 1776. It exists as strongly now, we say, as on that cold night when WASHINGTON crossed the Delaware, with no other authority than that of "God and the Continental Congress." It was the same necessity then, it is the same necessity now, that required the crushing through Maryland, or the crushing out of Maryland, when for the moment she seemed to interpose herself as an obstruction to intercourse with the national heart.

This may be called the à priori argument against the mischievous doctrine of State sovereignty, whether as it regards their staying out of the Union, their coming into the Union, or their claim to go out of it. Although most abundantly confirmed by national acts, as may be shown in another part of our general discussion, it has its ultimate or fundamental ground in history, as lying back of all conventional proceedings. If this be a correct view, it need only be further said here, that as no such partial municipality would have been allowed to stay out on the ground of any sovereign right, so no one shall be allowed to go out on any such claim. The argument is à fortiori, and would be historically unanswerable, even were it not confirmed by other strong oath-bound compacts which may subsequently be considered.

The Internal Revenue and the National Banks—Important Decision.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has made the following important decision concerning National Banks:

By the provisions of the act to provide internal revenue, approved July 1, 1862, specifying all banks which should be thereafter specially incorporated or exist under general laws, National banks are required to account to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for three per cent. of all dividends declared, and of all sums added to surplus or contingent fund.

The 45th section of an "act to provide a national currency," approved Feb. 25, 1863, under which National banks are organized, directs the managers of such banks to declare dividends of so much of the profits as shall be deemed expedient, semi-annually, in the months of May and November.

The return and payment of tax is to be made within thirty days after the dividend is declared, or the profits carried to the contingent fund.

The legal assessment of the tax is upon the dividend; and, therefore, when it is determined to divide a certain sum among the stockholders, three per cent. on that sum is to be paid to the Government, and ninety-seven per cent. to the stockholders. For instance, if it is desired by any bank to divide among the stockholders $6,000, the amount of the dividend which it will be necessary to declare will be $6,185 57. Of that sum, $185 57 will be payable as tax, and the remaining $6,000 will go to the stockholders. The sum to be added to the amount which is desired to be divided among stockholders will be ascertained, in the example stated, by the following proportions: 97 : 3 : : 6,000 : 185.57.

In this case, the excess of net profits since previous dividend over $6,185 57 will be returned as addition to surplus, and tax paid thereon accordingly, without regard to the manner in which the gains were acquired.

The managers of a bank being especially required to withhold the due proportion from the stockholders as a part of their individual income tax, the amount cannot be deducted from the net profits as a legitimate expense of the bank.

It is provided by the "act amendatory of the act to provide internal revenue," approved March 3, 1863, that all banks omitting to declare dividends, or to make additions to their surplus or contingent funds as often as once in six months, shall semi-annually, on the first days of January and July in each year, make a return of and pay a tax of three per cent. on the net profits of the six months next preceding.

That uniform returns may be secured from the national banks, it is desirable that the managers do, in the months of May and November, make disposition of whatever profits have accrued since the prior dividend, either by declaring a dividend, or of adding the gains to the contingent fund; but at the first regular dividend month after the organization of the bank no return will be required, unless the directors deem a disposition of profits expedient. An explanatory letter, showing the date when the bank commenced business, should be forwarded to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

By the seventh section of an act to provide ways and means to support the Government, appaoved March 3, 1863, all banking houses receiving deposits of money subject to check or draft, with the single exception of savings institutions, are required semi-annually, on the first days of April and October in each year, to pay a tax of one-eighth of one per cent. on the average of all deposits held by them during the six months next preceding, beyond the average amount of their circulating notes lawfully issued and outstanding as currency for that period.

From the special exemption of savings institutions, which, in the transaction of their legitimate business, do not issue notes for circulation as currency, it was clearly the intention of Congress to impose a duty on the entire deposits of banking-houses issuing no notes.

No currency having been furnished to the National Banks prior to Oct. 1, 1863, the returns then due can cover only the average of deposits.

The rate of this tax is invariably one-eighth of one per centum; but its amount, paid by banks organized within the period of six months preceding the time when the semi-annual return is required, will be determined by the length of time during which they have been in operation.

All deposits, whether made to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States or by other banks, savings banks and bankers, or by States, cities or towns, or for which certificates have been issued, and, in fact, all descriptions of deposit which may be used by the depositary, or from which he may derive profits, are subject to taxation. Such bank balances as occur in the daily business between banks in a large city, and being ascertained are promptly settled, as under what is known as the clearing-house system, are not deemed taxable deposits.

Payment of tax of either class is to be made to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, at Washington, and in all cases to be attended by a sworn statement on Form 6, by him provided, of dividends in May and November, and of average deposits in April and October, on Form 53. Each must have a five cent certificate stamp. Payment may be made by certificate of deposit of the amount with a National Bank duly authorized to receive it, or an Assistant Treasurer or designated depositary of the United States; or if more convenient, a sight-draft on any city where such an officer is located; or if still preferred, the amount can be forwarded in Treasury Notes, but in all cases the risk and expense of transmission must be borne by the party remitting.

If, on the explanation herein conveyed, it shall appear that any bank has made an erroneous return, paying too much or too little either for tax on dividend or deposits, it is requested that the facts be duly set forth, upon oath, on the next return due of last description, and the account then and there adjusted. It will be remembered that all communications by mail should be post-paid.

THE CASE OF MR. J. SMITH HOMANS.—We have received the following note concerning a paragraph in our Washington correspondence, which we publish with great pleasure. It comes from a gentleman who has made himself thoroughly familiar with the facts of the case, and whose statements are thoroughly reliable:

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The statement in the letter of your Washington correspondent, dated Jan. 25, relating to Mr. J. SMITH HOMANS, is incorrect, and very unjust to that gentleman.

Upon a proper representation of the facts of the case to the Secretary of the Treasury, the letter charging Mr. HOMANS with discreditable conduct was not only withdrawn, but all record of it in the department was ordered to be destroyed. Mr. HOMANS is simply removed from office. Very respectfully, your obedient servant, etc.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF THE JULY RIOTS.—DEATH OF A POLICEMAN.—Capt. SPRIGHT, of the Twenty-ninth Precinct, reported yesterday the death of Officer JOHN N. HOFFMAN. He died at 5 o'clock on Saturday evening of a disease contracted during the riots of last July. He had been three years connected with the department, and was known as a very faithful and efficient officer.

Morton's Gold Pens are now sold at the same prices as before the commencement of the war; this is entirely owing to the Manufacturer's improvements in machinery, his present large Retail Business and Cash-in-Advance System; for, until he commenced adver tising, his business was done on Credit and strictly with the Trade.

The Morton Gold Pens are the only ones sold at old prices, as the makers of all other gold pens charge the Premium on the Gold, Government Tax, &c.; but Morton has in no case changed his prices, Wholesale or Retail.

Of the great numbers sent by mail to all parts of the world during the past few years, not one in a thousand has failed to reach its destination in safety; showing that the Morton Gold Pen can be obtained by any one, in every part of the world, at the same price, postage only excepted.

Reader, you can have an enduring, always ready, and reliable Gold Pen, exactly adapted to your hand and style of writing, which will do your writing vastly cheaper than Steel Pens; and at the present almost universal High-Pressure Price of everything, you can have a Morton Gold Pen cheaper, in proportion to the labor spent upon it and material used, than any other Gold Pen in the World. A Letter from Dr. B. C. Perry.
NEW YORK, Jan., 1864.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

SIR: One of the most annoying difficulties connected with the Hair and its diseases is Dandruff, in its various phases. Its philosophy being very little understood, I will give my views on the subject for the benefit of those afflicted.

There are to the square inch of the scalp three thousand pores, for the purposes of throwing off the secretions or fluid matter that forms between the cuticle and the inner or sensitive skin. If from any cause, such as to neglect to keep the scalp clean, or from the use of glutinous oils, the pores become partially closed, the remaining portion are overtasked, the cuticles somewhat debilitated, the pores fail to perform their functions, inasmuch as only the limpid or more etherial portions of the secretions can pass off, leaving a white, bran-like substance deposited on the scalp, called Dandruff; that is the first phase of the difficulty.

When more of the pores are closed by exhaustion, less of the limped secretions flow off; the deposit on the scalp assumes a yellow, sticky appearance, and is called thickened secretion. This is the second phase of dandruff. The third phase is when most of the pores are closed, the cuticle entirely debilitated; none of the fluid portions of the secretions can pass off; the deposit adheres closely to the scalp; has the appearance of yellow matter, and is called matterated secretion, which inevitably results in loss of hair. If at this stage of the disease it is not arrested by a proper course of treatment, it finally terminates in eczema, one of the most difficult diseases of the scalp for a physician to manage.

As to the remedy—Nature is always true to herself. If the scalp is kept clean, and the pores not glued up with oils or pomades, the secretions will pass off, and such a thing as dandruff would not be known, and people would not lose their hair. But when a difficulty of the kind does exist, it should be treated rationally. It is little use to remove the effect while the cause exists. Dandruff in its first stages is early cured, and it should receive the earliest attention, as it is one of the primary causes of diseases of the scalp and loss of hair. For further information I can be consulted free of charge for all diseases of the scalp that destroy the hair or induce premature blanching, at my office, No. 49 Bond-st., New-York.

Yours truly,
B. C. PERRY, Dermatologist.

TESTIMONIAL FROM ONE OF THE MOST RESPECTABLE CITIZENS OF NEW-YORK.
DEAFNESS AND CATARRH CURED.

No. 120 SIXTH-AV., NEW-YORK, Dec. 2, 1863.

I was deaf for several years, and hearing of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I was induced to place myself under his care, and I am now happy to state that my hearing was entirely restored after a short treatment. I was also suffering from chronic catarrh, of which I was also cured by the skillful treatment of Dr. Von Eisenberg. I do but justice to the Doctor in stating that in treating me he displayed that skill and knowledge which have already procured for him such a deserved reputation, and that the principles which direct his system of curing Deafness and Catarrh are such as to render success certain, in my opinion. Many months have passed since Dr. Von Eisenberg restored my hearing, and it continues as good as ever.

CATARRH CURED.
READ!

I have been suffering for a long time from a severe Catarrh, with a continual dullness in my head, a tightness across my chest, a weight over my eyes, which were weak, watery, and very painful. My nostrils were constantly obstructed with a pouring fluid. That frequent sneezing, hoarseness of my voice, often attended with a fullness of my throat, great soreness, and a continual dropping. Dr. Von Eisenberg has cured me of all these disagreeable sufferings. I may, indeed, say that I feel a new life. The treatment of Dr. Von Eisenberg is as skillful as it is successful. It is in my opinion impossible to overrate the benefit I have received at his hands. I heartily recommend any one suffering like myself to place themselves under Dr. Von Eisenberg's care, with a certainty of being speedily cured.

HARLEM, July 30, 1863.

I have been deaf for over TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, and Dr. VON EISENBERG operated on both of my ears without the slightest pain—a thing that I could not believe could be done. I now hear well, and feel as I never felt for the last twenty years. The dexterity and skill with which the operation was performed evince the highest practical ability. I hear perfectly. It is now over a month since the operation, and I continue to feel as well as ever.

WILLIAM LIDDLE,
Harlem, 126th-st., between 3d and 3d avs.

No. 134 ALLEN-ST., NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

Iconsulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain. JOHN TAYLOR.

NEW-YORK, July 29, 1863.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. I tis with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
READ.

NEW-YORK, March 30, 1863.

"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, the chills stealing over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him with but little hope of a cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH

CHICAGO AND GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY,

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS,

FOR $2,000,000.

SUBSCRIPTION BOOKS OPENED WITH Messrs. SCHUCHARDT & GEBHARD, Bankers, No. 21 Nassau-st., New-York.

The Chicago and Great Eastern Railway Company now offer for sale one million one hundred thousand dollars of their first mortgage bonds, in sums of one thousand dollars each, maturing in thirty years, bearing interest at the rate of Seven per cent. per annum, payable in the City of New-York, on the first days of April and October, in each year.

These bonds are secured by a first and only Mortgage on the property, income and franchises of the Railway Company, executed to Frederick Schuchardt and Henry Morgan, of the City of New-York, Trustees.

The remaining nine hundred thousand dollars of the Bonds are set apart and remain in the hands of the said Trustees, for the purpose of being exchanged for the indebtedness of the Chicago and Cincinnati Railroad Company, running from La Crosse to Logansport; this effected, the $2,000,000 will form a First and only Mortgage on a line of road 110 miles in length, extending from Chicago to Logansport, where it connects with the Cincinnati and Chicago Air-line Railroad, forming the shortest line by 40 miles, between Chicago and Cincinnati, and by 36 miles the shortest line between Louisville and Chicago.

It will also open, in connection with roads now in operation, entirely new and very direct lines from Chicago to New-York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and all Eastern cities. The distance between Chicago and New-York by this route being shorter than by either of the existing lines via Dunkirk or Buffalo.

The road is now under contract, and the most strenuous efforts are being made to have it open for traffic during the Summer of 1864.

The interest on the Bonds maturing during the progress of the work has been provided for, and will remain on deposit with the Bankers of the Company, Messrs SCHUCHARDT & GEBHARD, No. 21 Nassau-st., to whom the Company refer for further particulars, and where subscription books for this loan have been opened.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

The vast increase in the demand for these COUGH LOZENGES, and the numerous testimonials constantly received, fully justify the Proprietor in asserting they are the best and safest yet offered to the public for the cure of the following complaints: ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, HOARSENESS, SHORTNESS OF BREATH, and other PULMONARY MALADIES.

They have deservedly obtained the high patronage of their Majesties the King of Prussia and the King of Hanover; very many, also, of the nobility and clergy, and of the public generally, use them, under the recommendation of some of the most eminent of the Faculty.

Prepared and sold in boxes and tins of various sizes by THOMAS KEATING, No. 79 St. Paul's Churchyard, London. Retail by all Druggists, &c., in the world.

N. B.—To prevent spurious imitations, please to observe that the words "Keating's Cough Lozenges" are engraved on the Government stamp of each box, without which none are genuine.

Sold in New-York by Messrs. Hegeman & Co., Joseph Horsey & Co., Druggists; and Mr. Theodore Metcalfe, Druggist, Boston.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by DR. WARD & CO., No. 50 Lispenard-st., near Broadway, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. DR. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris, and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years' practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and at less expense than any other can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call: it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to DR. WARD, No. 50 Lispenard-st., the only place. Call, send, or write for a circular.

CURE CURE—BY DR. POWERS, SUCCESSfully consulted with Dr. WARD, No. 50 Lispenard-st. Conducted on the plan of the Hospital des Veneriens, Paris, where those afflicted with any form of private disease can receive prompt treatment, without risk or exposure, viz.: Syphilis, gonorrhœa, gleet, strictures, ulcers, tumors, cancers, secondary and constitutional syphilis, diseases of the kidneys, &c., &c. Thirty years of extensive practice, exclusively devoted to the treatment of these complaints enable us to effect cures in cases where others of less experience have failed. Dr. Powers' Essence of Life restores the vigor of youth in four weeks. This marvelous agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitution—physical disqualifications, impediments to marriage, speedily cured. The men to consult, Dr. Ward and Powers, the champions and kings of venereal diseases, possessing the most certain, speedy and only effectual remedies in the world, guarantee a perfect cure, or no charge, in from one to three days. Established in 1846. Those who have used their preventives are never without. Send for a circular. To Ladies.—Dr. Powers' Periodical Drops are a safe and certain remedy for monthly irregularities. The above remedies sent by mail. The afflicted should read their circular. Postage free, on receipt of a stamp. Cures warranted AFFLICTED RESTORED! IGNORANCE EXPOSED! FALLACIES UNMASKED!—Highly important to both sexes, married or single, in health or disease. Dr. LARMONT'S Paris, London and New-York Medical Adviser and Marriage Guide, 80th edition, over 400 pages, nearly 100 figure illustrations upon married and nervous debility, urinary deposits, involuntary loss of semen, impotency, affections of the bladder and kidneys, genito-urinary diseases and their consequences, the anatomy of the sexual organs of the male and female, latest researches in physiology; European hospital practice; quacks, recipes and specifics: the author's unequaled Paris and London treatment, &c. Mailed for $1, closely sealed, by the publisher, E. WARNER, No. 1 Vesey-st., Astor House.

All who would avoid unsuccessful and barbarous treatment with mercury, copaiba, injections, cauterizations, quack specifics, antidotes, instruments, &c., should read this original book, or consult the Doctor, No. 173 Broadway, (up stairs,) New-York, from 10 to 5.

"We concur with other papers in recommending Dr. Larmont and his work."—Courrier des Etats Unis, Dispatch, Staats Zeitung, Atlas, Medical Review, &c.

DR. COBBETT, MEMBER OF THE N. Y. University, (Medical College,) and Royal College of Surgeons, London, has removed from No. 19 Duane-st. to his present very convenient suite of offices at No. 23 Centre-st., between Chambers and Reade sts., with a private entrance at No. 6 City Hall-place, where he can be consulted with the most honorable confidence on all cases affecting the urinary organs; thirty years in his present specialty, (three of which have been at the Hospitals of this City,) enable him to guarantee a cure in every case undertaken, or make no charge. Strictures of the urethra, impotency, seminal weaknesses, &c., treated on the most scientific principles. N. B.—As a proof of Dr. C.'s qualifications, he would call special attention to his Diplomas, which can be seen in his office.

DR. COOPER, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY BE confidently consulted on all diseases of a private nature. A practice of 30 years, devoted to the treatment and cure of Syphilitic, Mercurial and diseases of a delicate nature, enables Dr. C. to make speedy and permanent cures, no matter of how long standing the case may be. Strictures of the urethra and seminal weakness, brought on by a secret habit, effectually cured. The victims of misplaced confidence, who have been misled by quack advertisements, can call on Dr. C. with the certainty of being radically cured or no charge made.

IMPORTANT TO THE MARRIED AND THOSE ABOUT TO BE MARRIED.—Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Professor of Diseases of Women, has just published the 160th edition of the valuable book, entitled "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," strictly intended for those whose health or circumstances forbid a too rapid increase of family. Price $1. MUSICAL.

STEINWAY & SONS'

GOLD MEDAL GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS are now considered the best in Europe as well as this country, having received the first Prize Medal at the World's Exhibition in London, 1862.

The principal reason why the Steinway Pianos are superior to all others, is, that the firm is composed of five practical pianoforte makers, (father and four sons,) who invent all their own improvements, and under whose personal supervision every part of the instrument is manufactured. Warerooms, Nos. 82 and 84 Walker-st., New-York. After March 1, 1865, 71 and 73 East 14th-st of policy, have up to this time refrained from retaliation. They have no longer this motive. So many of their own towns have been destroyed, and such efforts made to burn Charleston, that they will consider themselves justified in the eyes of the world, in carrying out the lex talionis. MORGAN, MOSBY, and a dozen other moss-troopers and guerrillas on land, and fleet steamers at sea, will do what they can to plunder and destroy. It must be expected, and guarded against as far as may be.

It is to be wished that the war might be fought out on civilized principles, as it might be if such were the desire at Washington; but if there is "Greek fire for the masses" of the South, it must be expected that some kind of fire will be returned to the masses of the North, who may be within reach of Southern vengeance. War is a game that two can play at, and it is not always as one-sided as partisans wish it to be. It is my deliberate conviction, from everything I see and hear, that the destructiveness of the war during the present year will exceed all that has gone before it. MONADNOCK.

AMERICAN TOPICS.

MR. GIBSON ON AMERICAN AFFAIRS.

The Right Hon. T. M. GIBSON, President of the Board of Trade, addressed a crowded meeting of his constituents on the evening of the 21st, at Ashton-under-Lyne Town-hall. Adverting to the war in America, he said:

With regard to the American question (the Government officially is strictly neutral; their policy has been to do nothing and to say nothing as a Government that should favor the views of either of the contending parties. I think generally that policy of neutrality has been approved by the country. We have been urged to recognize the South to take steps to bring about a cessation of the blockade, not recently, but formerly, and it is a circumstance which I cannot pass without observation, that the people in this part of the United Kingdom, whose own interests would appear the most likely to be promoted by putting an end to the blockade, have most desired that our policy should be guided by justice and good feeling, with a fair allowance for the enormous difficulties which the Government of the United States have had to encounter. [Cheers.] These urgings about America have not come from the cotton districts. I suppose it is found out by this time that the cotton districts have souls and intellects and the power of appreciating what is just and right in our national policy, and are not prepared to recommend that this country should take an unworthy course for promoting the pecuniary interests of the class to which they belong. [Loud cheering.] I am one of those who think that at the commencement of this American war many persons too hastily formed the opinion that it was impossible the Union could be restored. The common saying was in many parts of the country with which I am acquainted, "There is one thing certain, that, whatever else happens, the Union cannot be restored." I never came to that conclusion. [Hear.] I do not know whether it will be restored. I can't look into futurity, but I cannot go the length of seeing so clearly before as some (and showing that it is impossible the Union should be restored. When the Southern leaders took up arms—for be it remembered they commenced the war—["Hear," and cheers]—it was a war of aggression on their part—when they took up arms for the purpose of compelling the Government of the United States to acquiesce in breaking up the integrity of the country, I always felt that the South had undertaken a task which it would be difficult to accomplish. Nothing short of something like such a conquest of the North as would compel them to lay down their arms in despair was likely to induce the Government of that country to agree to separate in the way which was proposed. But when I am told by the Southern leaders that their object in taking up arms was not merely the enjoyment of their own independence, but the establishing of a model slave republic, which should perpetuate the institution of Slavery, and hold it up as an institution which should be cherished and not condemned, I then said to myself, if these men are right and are going to succeed in establishing these principles as foundation-stones of a new empire, what have we been about for years and years in preaching and teaching that Slavery is a curse, and that it is the greatest degradation that can fall upon a country? What! Have we been endeavoring to inoculate every country with which we have come in contact with our ideas as to the necessity of abolishing the Slave-trade, and therefore I say Slavery also, because if Slavery is right, then the Slave-trade is not wrong? Well, if the Southern States of America are right in endeavoring by force of arms to establish this model slave Republic, I say, we have all been previously in the dark—we have been poor benighted beings that have lost sight, or have not been aware of the great truth which Mr. STEPHENS and others have taught in the Southern States of America, that the normal condition of the negro, his only proper, natural condition in the world is that of shame. But, as we are told by this same gentleman, Mr. STEPHENS, that this Government of the Confederate States which is about to be established, will be the first Government in the history of the world that is giving the lie, as it were, to all the canting policy which has been supported by England and other countries against slave institutions; if this be the state of affairs, can I as an Englishman wish or hope for success to such a cause? I sympathize with nations struggling for independence, but that is not the question here. [Hear, hear.] No man has alleged a grievance in the Southern States except the growing sentiment of the North against the institution of Slavery. No man has said that in the South any right has been withheld, or that any wrong has been witnout a remedy, and, in fact, Mr. JEFFERSON DAVIS himself has lauded the institutions of the country in reference to the past; but has only said that in the future he sees looming that growing sentiment which will endanger the slave institutions of the South, and which must continue to embitter the relations between the North and the South if it went on, and that therefore it was better to separate. Well, I believe myself that one end of this great civil war in America, that one termination, at any rate, will be the abolition of Slavery. [Cheers.] My honorable and respected friend Mr. BRIGHT [loud cheers] is often charged with wanting to introduce American institutions into England. Well, I say, with regard to this American war, the South rebelled and raised this insurrection because they foresaw that an English institution—viz., the emancipation of the slave, was about to be introduced into their country. It was the resistence to this policy of ours—to the policy of England of all other countries in the world—that gave rise to this great insurrection. [Hear, hear.] We are told, sometimes, that tariff questions had something to do with it. Disabuse your mind entirely of that idea. I assert, and if there were time, I could prove to you by the clearest demonstration, that tariff questions had nothing on earth to do with the quarrel between North and South. Why, the South was never united upon the question of free trade, the South never held one opinion upon the question of protective duties. On the contrary, Louisiana was for protecting her sugar, and other States of the South were for protecting their produce; but as for its having anything to do with the form of government—why, if America had been a monarchy, if it had been an empire like France, when these two great sentiments, freedom of labor on the one side and Slavery on the other, came into collision on the scale on which they exist in America, what would have been the certain consequences? Why, we did not find it so easy to emancipate our slaves in England. We had some trouble. We paid £20,000,000, and we had a long, eager agitation, in which there was much embittered feeling, and my firm belief is, that if the slave party in England had borne the same proportion to the rest of the community when emancipation was demanded in this country which they bore in the United States at the commencement of the civil war, it is very probable you would not have been able to get through your emancipation in this country without a resort to arms, or perhaps, to the secession of your slave countries to some other slave country where there would have been a greater affinity to themselves. [Hear.] Now, it is remarkable what is going on at the present moment in the North, notwithstanding this tremendous pressure upon their resources, which no doubt will raise a very large debt, but which debt I believe that country will, with its growing population and its vast means, be enabled to bear. I have got in my hand a report of the Commissioner of Agriculture in the United States for the last year, and I find that in 1862 there were grown in that country 169,992,500 bushels of wheat, I find, in 1863, that that quantity has increased 191,068,229 bushels. I find that nearly all articles of agricultural produce have increased considerably even during this war, and notwithstanding the fact that no less than a million of men employed in the army and navy have been withdrawn chiefly from the agricultural producing classes, notwithstanding we see this remarkable statement. Perhaps emigration may in some measure account for it, for I find that large numbers of adventurers from every part of Europe are still crowding the shores of the United States. I find that the commissioner says that, "While some adventurers seek the Western World for military fame, stimulated by our large bounties and chance of promotion, to fight sincerely the battles of freedom and equality, the greater part come to labor, to enjoy independence and quiet, and to make happy the humble homes for themselves and their children. According to the report of the New-York Commissioners of Emigration, the number of emigrants arriving at that port was 146,519, against 67,307 during 1862. This proportionate increase holds good in respect to the other great ports of our country, and independent of the large number of persons from Canada for portions of America." I will read only one small passage more of the Commissioner's Report, because if I were to go on at any length I should read some opinions which would be held to be unpalatable in certain quarters. (Laughter.) I shall confine myself to one passage in which he wishes to indicate some of the causes which have led to this great immigration at this particular time, in the United States. He says to an intelligent mind, and especially to every American, the causes of this influx of foreign population, even during a period of war, are very evident and gratifying. I shall simply indicate some of them without discussing them at length. In the first place, the present rebellion is being understood abroad in its true light, as a revolt against democracy, the rights of labor, and human nature, and that the triumph of the Government guarantees to immigration its great reward of peace, prosperity, and freedom. [Cheers.] I hope I may be forgiven for speaking out so much on this question, but I could not disguise my feelings, and I think the contest has arrived at a stage when we should frankly express our views and interchange our ideas.

ITALY.

GARIBALDI'S MANIFESTO.

The following is the manifesto of Gen. GARIBALDI, for the publication of which the Diritto, of Turin, is to be prosecuted:

CAPRERA, January, 1864.

Events press: If the year 1863 has left behind it shameful traces of egotism and discords, the new is inaugurated by other promises. In the agitation of oppressed peoples; in the fears of despotism which feigns to bow to right; in the Titanic struggles of Poland, indomitable and still erect; in the embarrassment even of diplomacy; on every side, in fact, arise the pressures of coming events. I am convinced that they will decide the safety of Italy, and will supply the occasion so long desired of realizing its wishes, if the liberal element is not content with invoking the morrow, in the inert expectation of something better, but is ready and united. Italian democracy, which includes in itself all the militant patriotism for the contested unity, ought to see that it is not sufficient to be numerous, young, confident, but it must above all be organized and disciplined. I have not found a better way of supplying this want than by choosing a phalanx of élite friends. And with them I have instituted a Central Unity Committee. The name defines the object. To receive pecuniary aid, to dispose men's minds to the accord of sacrifice and duty, all this with the holy end of the national deliverance, and of fraternal assistance to the enslaved provinces on the longed-for day of battles, such is its mandate; it has no other. If the reaction, as tenacious as crafty in its designs, conspires against the unity of the country; if the latter is threatened by the errors of a Government policy, against which I have protested, because it has appeared to me forgetful of the national interests and will, the duty of abnegation becomes more forcibly urgent, more sacred for the Liberals. Thus, far from using in vain and perhaps dangerous agitations, the uncontrolled energy of their patriotism, let them keep it entire for the days in which the only means of safety will be the cooperation of all good citizens in the assistance of their brothers oppressed by the foreigner. Consequently I invite the friends and the existing societies, and all the Italians who disdain to remain passive spectators of the great drama which decides their existence and their rights, to group around this one centre, to recognize its authority, and to regard as mine the instructions emanating from this committee, or from its delegates. I also invite the liberal press to lend the aid of publicity to the acts of the committee. In the name of the whole committee and in mine, the deservedly-esteemed citizen BENEDETTO CAIROLI will sign the documents. Such, once more, is the Roman fascès which I ask of the Italians. May their hearts understand the nature of my intentions.

(Signed,) G. GARIBALDI.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The National Academy of Science.

At the late meeting of the National Academy of Science, held at Washington, the Committee on Weights and Measures made a brief report of progress, and asked to be continued, so as to give information, when desired by the Government, in regard to the technical points of the subjects now under consideration by European nations.

The report on the protection of bottoms of iron vessels shows how inefficient the efforts heretofore made to protect and prevent the fouling of the bottoms of iron vessels have been, and recommends direct experiments upon the subject.

The Committee on the Deviation of Compasses in iron and other vessels of the navy, have been steadily at work in directing the corrections by AVERY'S method, and twenty-two vessels have been satisfactorily experimented with. Some cases of the action of iron rigging acting as a dipping needle have proved of interest. The magnetism of several iron-clads and iron vessels in the course of construction has been examined, and of the revolving turrets of iron-clads. The effect of causing the turrets to revolve has been thoroughly examined in the Roanoke and Passaic.

SAXTON'S hydrometer was favorably reported upon for its simplicity and compactness. It can be contained in an ordinary pill-box of one inch in diameter.

The subjects known commonly as MAURY'S Wind and Current Charts, and Sailing Directions, submitted for examination by the Navy Department, was unfavorably reported upon, and after a thorough discussion the following resolutions were adopted by the Academy:

Resolved by the National Academy of Sciences, that in the opinion of this Academy, the volumes entitled "Sailing Directions" heretofore issued to navigators from the Naval Observatory, and the "Wind and Current Charts" which they are designed to illustrate and explain, embrace much which is unsound in philosophy and little that is practically useful, and that therefore these publications ought no longer to be issued in their present form.

Resolved, That the records of meteorological phenomena, and of other important facts connected with terrestrial physics, which, under the direction of the Navy Department, have been accumulated at the Observatory, are capable of being turned to valuable account, and that it is eminently desirable that such information should continue to be collected and subjected to careful discussion.

Resolved, That the President of the Academy be authorized and requested to communicate to the Secretary of the Navy a copy of the foregoing resolutions, and of this report, as a response to the inquiry addressed to the Academy upon this subject, by that officer.

The matters before the Committee on Currency being of a confidential nature, the committee was placed in direct relations with the Secretary of the Treasury. They are understood to have suggested important safeguards in reference to the new currency.

The Forty-fifth New-York Volunteers—Howe Rifles.

This regiment being now on their way to this City, to enjoy a furlough of thirty days, will arrive here, probably, about Wednesday or Thursday next. The friends of the regiment have made arrangements for a worthy and hearty reception of them. An appropriate fund is being collected by subscriptions, and it is expected that, by the unanimous consent of military and civil organizations, a fine reception will be got up for these brave boys.

His Honor, Mayor C. G. GUNTHER, with the Common Council and the Board of Police Commissioners, have been especially invited to participate—the latter in honor of the present Commander of the regiment, Lieut.-Col. A. DOREBE, who, previous to his military career in this regiment, was an esteemed member of the Second Precinct Police—and they have tendered a full military band for this occasion. The Fifth, Sixth, and a part of the Eleventh Regiment N. Y. S. N. G., as well as the Fifty-eighth, Sixty-eighth and One Hundred and Third Regiments New-York Volunteers, and several civil societies, have also promised to turn out to welcome them on their arrival.

A collation will be served to the officers and men of the returning regiment, at PAUL FALE'S Broadway Garden, No. 545 Broadway, the proprietor having kindly offered his premises for that purpose.

The Committee of Arrangements have established telegraphic communication with the regiment, and thus will be able to ascertain in ample time their arrival.

Another meeting of the friends of this regiment will be held at their headquarters, No. 83 Allen-street, at 8 o'clock P. M., on Monday, the 8th inst., at which all friends of the regiment are heartily solicited to attend.

An Order from the Provost-Marshal-General.

The subjoined order has been promulgated:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
PROVOST-MARSHAL-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, Feb. 5, 1864.

CIRCULAR, No. 5.—I. When guards are required in a District, the Provost-Marshal shall make the application to the Acting Assistant Provost-Marshal General for the State or Division, for a detail from the Invalid Corps or other available troops.

Provost-Marshals are hereby prohibited from hereafter employing civilian guards, unless it be impossible for the Acting-Assistant Provost-Marshal-General to furnish the necessary enlisted guard.

Applications to the Provost-Marshal-General for civil guards must be made in accordance with Circular No. 102, November 23, 1863, and must state, in addition, the necessity for the employment of the guard, and that, after having made proper application therefor, it is impossible to obtain a guard of enlisted men.

II. Acting Assistant Provost-Marshal-General are hereby required to indorse their approval, disapproval, or remarks, on all communications forwarded through them to the Provost-Marshal-General—the indorsement to be on the communications and not on wrappers.

III. All agreements for rent of offices, store-rooms, &c., connected with this bureau, must be made subject to the approval, and terminable at the pleasure, of the Provost-Marshal-General.

JAMES B. FRY, Provost-Marshal-General.

Enlistments for the Regular Army.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE EAST,
NEW-YORK CITY, Feb. 6, 1864.

CIRCULAR.—Pursuant to instructions received from the Secretary of War, dated Feb. 3, 1864, officers of the regular army recruiting for the same, are authorized to enlist men for three years, under the joint resolutions of the Senate and House of Representatives, approved Jan. 13, 1864, as published in General Orders No. 20, from the War Department, dated Jan. 14 1864.

By command of Maj.-Gen. DIX.
D. T. VAN BUREN, Col. and Asst. Adjt.-Gen.
Official: THOS. LORD, Jr., Aide-de-Camp.

An Assistant Provost-Marshal in Trouble.

A few days since, a soldier was knocked down and robbed of $150 in money, on Riker's Island. The money was subsequently recovered, and, for safe-keeping, it was placed in the hands of Lieut. GEORGE KNIGHT, of the United States Army, who is also Assistant Provost-Marshal. While the latter was passing through West Houston-street, on Friday night last, a young woman, named JANE WHITE, accosted him, and in her company he went to a saloon, corner of Houston and Mercer streets. While the two were taking refreshments, the Lieutenant felt the hand of his companion in his pocket. He seized her hand and his pocket-book fell to the floor. Picking it up he thrust it into his pocket without examining to see if any of the contents were missing. Soon after he parted from JANE a block or two from the place, and then he thought to examine his pocket-book, when he found his money was all missing. He at once pursued her and found her in a saloon in Greene-street. Officer MCPHERSON, of the Eighth Precinct, hearing a disturbance there, went in, and on the representations of the Lieutenant arrested JANE. When they were on the sidewalk the officer noticed something drop from her hand, and on examining it found it to be $130 of the Lieutenant's money. What, in the meantime she had done with the other $20 does not appear. She was taken before Justice DODGE and committed for trial in default of $1,000 bail.

The Twenty-fourth-street Fire.

FURTHER PARTICULARS—ONE THOUSAND PERSONS THROWN OUT OF EMPLOYMENT—ESTIMATED LOSS OVER $200,000.

The main building destroyed in the extensive conflagration on Saturday night, an account of which we published in the TIMES of yesterday, was 90 feet front on Twenty-fourth-street, extending 200 feet through to Twenty-fifth-street, and was six stories in height. Mr. LEGGETT, the owner of the building, estimates his loss on building, machinery and stock of coal at about $150,000. The machinery alone is said to have cost $50,000. The engine was regarded as the largest stationary one in use, being 1,000 horse power. It supplied power not only for the whole of the east wing of Mr. LEGGETT'S premises, but also for all the machine-shops and factories in the building known as the Old House of Refuge, situated on the south side of Twenty-fourth-street, the pipes and shafting to supply which being laid under the street. The occupants of these buildings will have to suspend work for want of steam-power. Taking all things into consideration, at least one thousand persons have been thrown out of employment by this conflagration.

Mr. LEGGETT is insured on his building and machinery for $27,500, as follows: Hamilton, $2,500; Peter Cooper, $2,500; Rutgers, $2,500; Astor, $2,500; Pacific, $2,500; Brooklyn, $2,500; Stuyvesant, $2,500; Merchants of Providence, $2,500; St. Marks, $2,500; Security, $5,000.

The east building is damaged to the extent of about of $3,000; insured for $15,000—In the Rutgers Insurance Company, $2,500; Peter Cooper, $2,500; St. Mark's, $2,500; Beekman, $2,500; Hope, of Providence, $2,500; Hope, of New-York, $3,000.

The west portion of the main building is damaged about $1,500; insured for $7,500, as follows: Hope, of New-York, $2,500; Irving, $2,500, and Security, $2,500.

Mr. LEGGETT states that his loss on feed and grain is about $30,000, upon which he had no insurance.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your issue of the 6th instant is an article entitled, "Arrest of two recruiting runners," which does me entire injustice. It is stated that I am a "notorious recruiting runner," and was arrested for swindling a recruit named WILLIAM BROWN of $150, and that I was sent to Fort Lafayette, &c. I am not now, nor have I ever been a "recruiting runner," or any other kind of a runner. It is true I was arrested, but was not sent to Fort Lafayette, nor was any "alternative" presented to me. On the charge being made known to me, I deposited the money with Gen. DIX, which will be returned to me or given to the family of the recruit BROWN as the General shall decide.

The facts of the case are briefly these: BROWN, the man alleged to have been swindled, was brought by other parties to the Sixth District for enlistment. He had agreed to give these parties $150: I have acted as a "bounty broker"—that is, I advanced the money to the recruit and awaited repayment from the county; those bringing recruits paid me a commission for the advance. I informed BROWN distinctly, and repeatedly, as did the mustering officer, that he was entitled to $300; he, however, declared his purpose to pay as he had agreed to, the $150 to those bringing him, which he did. That was all. It was a fair, square, open, legitimate transaction throughout. By giving the above a prominent place in your paper, you will oblige A. H. DOWNER.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

BURNING OF THE SCHOONER MARIA PIKE.—The three-masted schooner Maria Pike, Capt. LEITS, loaded with 1,300 bales hay, bound to Washington, D. C., and chartered by Government, while hauling from the pier in the North River, at 9 o'clock this morning, was discovered to be on fire, and in less than twenty minutes she was completely enveloped in flames. She was towed in the river, when the police-boat, in charge of Sergt. O'BRIEN, came to her assistance, and immediately got her pumps to work, throwing a copious stream upon the burning vessel. Several of the Harbor Police went on board, and through their utmost exertions succeeded in saving considerable property, but the inflammable nature of the cargo defied their untiring efforts to save the vessel, and after drifting down the river some distance she was finally scuttled, when she filled, and is now anchored off the Battery. She will probably be a total loss. The vessel is valued at $12,000; her spars and rigging are completely gone, with the exception of about $300 worth, saved by the harbor police-boat. The propellers Columbia and Lewis were also at the fire, using their pumps, which threw immense quantities of water into the vessel, but all of no avail.

PROF. DOREMUS' LECTURES.—The first of the course of lectures by Prof. DOREMUS, on "The World's Indebtedness to Science," is given at Cooper Institute this evening. They will be of the greatest interest and of the most instructive character. An additional supply of tickets has been left at the bookstores, the first having been all taken.

BURNED TO DEATH.—At half-past three o'clock yesterday morning, a woman, named ANASTATIA COLLINS, residing at No. 406 Pearl-street, was burned to death by her clothes taking fire from a stove while she was under the influence of liquor. Coroner COLLIN was notified, and will hold an inquest this morning.

DEAFNESS
NOISES IN THE HEAD,
Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,
CATARRH CURED
BY
DR. VON EISENBERG,
AT HIS CONSULTING ROOMS,

DEAFNESS AND CATARRH.

No. 23 FORSYTH-ST., NEW-YORK, Oct. 1, 1863.

Dr. Von Eisenberg:

DEAR SIR: Without recapitulating the numerous benefits I have received through your wonderful cure of the deafness I have labored under many years, the blessings I enjoy will convince the most skeptical.

I have tried many aurists, in Europe and America, without success. I was still deaf as a post.

Three years ago I entered your office, underwent one operation, hoping, yet doubting. I should receive any relief, but was agreeably disappointed in finding the genius of your profession.

The innate skill you possess cured my deafness in one almost painless operation.

The joy I experienced was indescribable; 'twas a new fe to me.

My hearing is perfect to this day.

I strongly advise all who are suffering under a difficulty of hearing, or total deafness, to consult you immediately, as I also personally recommend all who apply to me. The numerous calls trespass on my time and patience, yet, remembering my own long, weary affliction, causes me to pity them.

This is not written to advertise your well-known, unrivaled reputation—that would be puerile; but as a measure of precaution, to induce all to call on you at once, without troubling me; yet I do not refuse to see any one who comes to me. This is the only way I can show my gratitude.

I also call the attention of those who are suffering from Catarrh, which disease I have labored under one year or more.

I experienced difficulty in breathing, langour, heaviness over the eyes, a sense of tightness on the brain, and copious expectorations of a hard and viscid nature. Accompanying this is a "polypus," quite filling the right nostril. On the 25th ult. you operated on both, killing the polypus, which is gradually passing away, and giving me great relief from the Catarrh. One more operation will effectually cure.

This testimonial brings with it my unalloyed and grateful thanks, with but a poor delineation of your wondrous skill as an Aurist.

I am, Sir, yours very gratefully,
EDWARD TEMPLE HARRISON.

"THE PEN IS MIGHTIER THAN THE SWORD."
THE GOLD PEN—THE BEST OF ALL PENS,
MORTON'S GOLD PENS,
THE BEST PENS IN THE WORLD.

On receipt of any of the following sums in Cash, the subscriber will send by return mail, or otherwise, as directed, a Gold Pen or Pens—selecting the same according to description, viz.:

GOLD PENS WITHOUT CASES.

For 25 cents, the Magic Pen; for 38 cents, the Lucky Pen; for 50 cents, the Always-Ready Pen; for 75 cents, the Elegant Pen; and for $1, the Excelsior Pen. These Pens are not numbered, but correspond in sizes to Numbers 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 respectively.

THE SAME PENS IN SILVER-PLATED EXTENSION CASES, WITH PENCILS.

For 50 cents, the Magic Pen; for 75 cents, the Lucky Pen; for $1, the Always-Ready Pen; for $1 25, the Elegant Pen, and for $1 50, the Excelsior Pen.

These are Well-Finished, Good-Writing Gold Pens, with Iridesmin Points, the average wear of every one of which will far outlast a gross of the best Steel Pens, although they are unwarranted, and, therefore, not exchangeable.

MORTON'S WARRANTED PENS.

The name "A. Morton," "Number," and "Quality," are stamped on the following Pens, and the points are warranted for six months, except against accident.

The Numbers indicate size only; No. 1 being the smallest, No. 6 the largest, adapted for the pocket; No. 4 the smallest, and No. 10 the largest Mammoth Gold Pen, for the desk.

Long and Medium Nibs of all sizes and qualities. Short Nibs of Numbers 4, 5, 6 and 7, and made only of first quality.

The Long and Short Nibs are fine pointed; the Medium Nibs are Broad.
